VINI ARANCIONI

CHE COSA SONO I VINI ARANCIONI?

Vini arancioni aka 'orange wines' are essentially white wines that are made more like reds. This means the juice is left in contact with the grape skins (prolonged maceration) which extracts phenolics (flavour compounds), colour, and tannic structure. These wines are treated more oxidatively than your average white wine, and some are fermented and/or aged in large clay vessels or wood barrels. The resulting colour of the wine can range from pale coppery-gold to deep orange or tawny brown.
