FEEDING HAWAIʻI, GROWING HAWAIʻI.

The Hawaiʻi Food Hub Hui (HFHH) is a statewide network of 14 food hubs working collaboratively to strengthen Hawaiʻi's local food system. Food hubs connect farmers and producers with markets, expand access to locally grown food, and provide the infrastructure necessary to aggregate, process, store, market, and distribute food across our islands.

Representing diverse nonprofit, for-profit, farmer-owned cooperative, and family-owned enterprises, Hui members provide critical services that connect Hawaiʻi's food producers to households, schools, businesses, institutions, and communities statewide.

2025 | Our Collective Impact

In 2025, HFHH hubs collectively generated $21.6 million in local food sales, a 5.3% increase from 2024, of which $12.75 million (58.8%) went directly into the hands of 1,824 local farmers and producers. These figures demonstrate the critical role food hubs play in creating viable markets for Hawaiʻi producers and keeping food dollars circulating within our local economy.

HFHH members also serve as critical food-access and community infrastructure. Nine hubs processed more than $1.32 million in SNAP/EBT sales and $663,000 in DA BUX incentives, directing $1.98 million in nutrition benefits toward fresh, locally sourced food statewide – a 15.6% increase from 2024. Collectively, the network supported 172 full- and part-time jobs and $7.33 million in payroll, further strengthening Hawaiʻi's local food-system workforce.

Building Capacity & Navigating Change

With support from the Healy Foundation, HFHH invested in strengthening the Hui's organizational capacity, statewide coordination, and long-term sustainability. Beginning in September 2025, Hui members undertook a collective hiring process led by a volunteer hiring committee, multiple rounds of interviews, and Hui-wide discussion and consensus. Through this process, members determined that creating two complementary leadership positions would provide the strongest combination of administrative, fundraising, and member support.

In March 2026, HFHH onboarded Kawika Shook as Managing Director and Harmonee Williams as Development Director. Kawika brings over a decade of experience in ʻāina stewardship, cultural preservation, and nonprofit capacity building. Harmonee brings over 15 years of leadership across Hawaiʻi's food-system sector.

This capacity is increasingly important as federal programs and requirements continue to evolve. Beginning in April 2026, changes in USDA administration of the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) affected the eligibility of select Hawai'i food retailers, including some Hui members, with additional retailer stocking requirements scheduled to take effect in November 2026. These abrupt changes underscore the value of dedicated leadership as well as a statewide community of practice that enables food hubs to collectively monitor, navigate, and respond to evolving programs critical to local food access and agricultural markets.

Looking Ahead | Strengthening Hawai'i's Food System Resilience

Recent Kona Low storms and Hurricanes Lala, Moke, and Lowell tested food hub infrastructure across the islands, resulting in power and internet outages, crop losses, structural damage, blocked roads, and disruptions to refrigeration and cold storage. While impacts varied across the network, Hui members relied on refrigerated vehicles, backup cold storage, alternative distribution routes, and community partnerships to preserve food and maintain operations. Through member experiences and post-disaster discussions, HFHH identified several shared priorities for future investment:

- Backup power and generators to maintain refrigeration, freezers, processing equipment, and essential operations
- Backup internet and communications to maintain ordering, inventory, payments, and coordination during internet and cellular outages
- Refrigerated vehicles, as well as stationary and mobile cold storage to protect and distribute perishable food
- Backup water storage and delivery systems to ensure reliable access to water for food processing, cooking, sanitation, and essential operations when municipal water supplies are disrupted
- Ice production, storage, and delivery capacity to maintain food safety, preserve perishable products, and support community cold storage during power outages and other emergencies
- Coordinated emergency-response protocols to strengthen preparedness and resource-sharing across the statewide network.

Building a more equitable, resilient, and secure food system requires all of us. We invite our partners, policymakers, stakeholders, and communities to engage, advocate, and invest in HFHH and its statewide network - prioritizing Hawai'i-grown food, elevating local farmers and producers, and expanding community access to fresh, locally sourced, nutrient-dense foods. Mahalo for your continued partnership and support of the Hawai'i Food Hub Hui.

WHAT IS A FOOD HUB?

USDA's working definition:

> "a business or organization that actively manages the aggregation, distribution, and marketing of source-identified food products primarily from local and regional producers to strengthen their ability to satisfy wholesale, retail, and institutional demand."

In Hawai'i, our hubs do that and more: running farmers markets, commercial kitchens, CSA boxes, SNAP/DA BUX access, and emergency food response.

INVEST IN LOCAL FOOD SECURITY

2027 FOOD HUB HUI INVESTMENT PRIORITIES

Targeted investments will strengthen Hawai'i's existing food hub network, expand local markets, build a more resilient, equitable, and healthy food system for our island communities.

Invest in Disaster Preparedness & Resilience

Strengthen food hubs as essential emergency food infrastructure with backup power, refrigerated storage, transportation, and communications to maintain food distribution during disasters.

$42M+ In reported disaster-related agricultural losses in 2026

Investment Need: Resilient equipment and infrastructure to safeguard food hub operations.

Expand Institutional Purchasing of Locally Produced Food

Strengthen Hawai'i's Farm-to-State and Farm-to-School initiatives and support food hubs as aggregation, processing, and distribution partners to help meet local procurement goals.

HRS § 27-8
HRS § 302A-405.6

Investment Need: Market development, processing capacity, and food safety support to increase local procurement and supply.

Advance Food is Medicine Initiatives

Support implementation of nutrition services authorized under Hawai'i's Medicaid QUEST Integration Section 1115 demonstration, including produce prescriptions and nutrition education.

Medicaid QUEST
Section 1115

Investment Need: Program support, food procurement, and distribution capacity to expand access to locally grown, culturally appropriate foods.
