

next in MS question guide

NextInMS.com

Get some suggestions to help you ask about the things you want to address "Below the Belt."

Here are some questions you may be afraid to ask, but may be glad you did.

Let's go there.
Let's go below the belt!

Next In MS is an educational initiative sponsored by TG Therapeutics. The information provided in this series is for educational purposes only and is not intended to be medical, legal, or any other category of professional advice. Please consult your healthcare provider regarding your individual medical needs.

Don't be embarrassed to ask about your concerns. That's why we wrote some questions for you. Just check/highlight the ones that apply to you (or you're curious about). Then simply read them to your healthcare provider.

Your doctors have heard it all. Trust us. Just try to shock them!

DID YOU KNOW?

80%

of people living with MS experience bladder dysfunction

50%-90%

of people living with MS experience sexual dysfunction

MS, multiple sclerosis.

Remember:
There are no wrong questions.

BUT

If you ask them, you might get the right response.

There's also space below each question for you to personalize, expand on the idea, or ask more.

Next In MS is an educational initiative sponsored by TG Therapeutics. The information provided in this series is for educational purposes only and is not intended to be medical, legal, or any other category of professional advice. Please consult your healthcare provider regarding your individual medical needs.

LET'S GO THERE

Sex & Intimacy

1. What happened to my sex drive? How can MS affect sex, sensation, and satisfaction?
2. Why can't I orgasm anymore? Or get an erection?
3. Why doesn't touch and intimacy feel the way it used to? Can I do something to reawaken my body?
4. How can I have a conversation with my partner about the medical realities of MS and sex?
5. Are there things I can do to make sure I don't pee during sex? (Which brings us to the next topic...)

Write down answers and any additional questions or thoughts here.

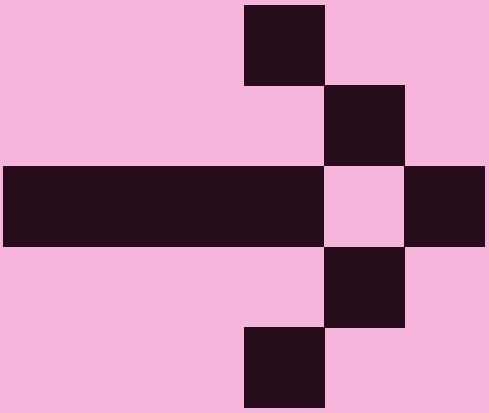
LET'S GO THERE

Bladder & Bathroom Issues

1. Why am I peeing all the time? (Seriously, it's like _____ times per day/night or every _____ minutes.)
2. And why do I keep wetting myself before I can make it to the bathroom?
3. But what if sometimes I feel like I have to pee and then nothing, or almost nothing, comes out?
4. Can MS make me lose control of my bowels?
5. Are there exercises, therapies, or other things I can do to help manage my bladder or bowel issues?
6. What about continence aids like shields, pads, or liners? Are there other options?

Write down answers and any additional questions or thoughts here.

NextInMS.com



Next In MS is an educational initiative sponsored by TG Therapeutics. The information provided in this series is for educational purposes only and is not intended to be medical, legal, or any other category of professional advice. Please consult your healthcare provider regarding your individual medical needs.

TG Therapeutics

©2026 TG Therapeutics, Inc. All rights reserved.
US-TGTX-2600069 11/2026

next... in MS