Nur Zahan lives in Hnilla Union, Cox's Bazar with her parents, Samsul Alam and Sara Khatun, five sisters and a brother. Her father is a daily labourer. Her mother is a home maker but sometimes she works as day labourer. Nur

Zahan's brother lives separately with his wife. Only Nur Zahan goes to school among her brothers and sisters. She is reading in class four. She is in the second position in the merit list of her class. Since class two, she would usually go to school without taking any food. Consequently, her mother decided not to continue her education. But Nur Zahan wanted to study, and was unhappy about it. Her parents sent Nur Zahan to work in a neighbour's house as housemaid. She found out from a classmate that biscuits were provided by WFP for those who go to school. After hearing this Nur Zahan again wanted to go school but her mother didn't want to send her daughter to school again. After few days, her mother let her daughter to go to school seeing the willingness of her daughter and because she didn't have to worry about her daughter going hungry. Nur zahan is a meritorious student. The school authority is expecting her to do well in the upcoming PSC examination.
