Insurance, Liability and Veterinary Expenses

1. Insurance

Seale Transport maintains commercial Hire & Reward insurance in respect of its equine transport operations. Such insurance does not constitute insurance against accidental injury, illness, death or loss of any horse whilst in transit.

2. Carriage at Owner's Risk

All horses are accepted for carriage at the owner's risk in respect of the inherent risks associated with equine transportation, including injury, illness, accident or unpredictable behaviour occurring during transit.

The owner is strongly advised to maintain adequate equine insurance covering accidental injury, veterinary treatment, mortality and other risks associated with transportation.

3. Veterinary Treatment and Expenses

In the event that a horse becomes ill, sustains an injury or otherwise requires veterinary attention during transportation, Seale Transport shall be entitled to obtain such veterinary assistance or treatment as it reasonably considers necessary in the interests of the horse's health and welfare.

All veterinary fees, treatment costs and associated expenses incurred shall be payable by the owner.

4. Standard of Care

Seale Transport shall exercise reasonable care and diligence in the handling, management and transportation of all horses entrusted to its care, in accordance with applicable animal welfare and transport legislation.
