

Dr. Theresa Price to Be Honored at the LA Sparks HBCU Night

The Los Angeles Sparks will host HBCU Night on Sunday, August 31, at Crypto.com Arena. As part of the program, the LA Sparks will honor Dr. Theresa Price, Founder and Executive Director of the National College Resources Foundation, for her decades of work expanding higher education access for under-resourced students.

Before the Sparks take on the Washington Mystics at 5:00 pm, the afternoon will feature an HBCU College Fair at the arena from 2:00 pm-5:00 pm, featuring an HBCU Power Panel and representatives from Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) with that attendees will be able to talk with to get information on admissions, scholarships, and campus life! To register and buy tickets visit:

High School Student Registration Link (includes, entrance to the HBCU College Fair, the HBCU Power Panel and one (1) ticket to the LA Sparks vs. Washington Mystics game):

https://LASparks.formstack.com/forms/hbcu_night_student_registration_2025_crypto_comarena

College/University Table Registration Link:

https://LASparks.formstack.com/forms/hbcu_2025_college_university_registration

For additional HBCU Night Game Tickets:

<https://www.gofevo.com/event/A10tionfoundation7> or gene

For more information, please contact careers@ncrfoundation.org or visit

<https://www.thecollegeexpo.org/students/internships-careers>

Written by Madison McClendon