Cultivating Seeds of New Life Through Global Partnership

FUM's vision of equipping and energizing people for missions is successful through global partnership relations. We are currently seeing the growth of Quaker churches in Tanzania, even spilling to Malawi and Zambia, because of a relationship between FUM, Tanzania Yearly Meeting, Indiana Yearly Meeting, Western Yearly Meeting, and many other interested Friends around the world. Kenyan Friends traveled to participate in the planting of the new Friends Church in Dar es Salaam. This is the power of global partnership.

Nicholas and Dorcas Otieno, FUM Living Letter missionaries to Tanzania, are excellent examples of how collaboration between Friends in America and Africa is making a significant difference. Through united global support, Nicholas and Dorcas have planted over twenty churches, new pastors and church leaders are being equipped and released for service, sports evangelism programs are reaching young people, and USFW groups gather.

Because of FUM's commitment to partnership, missions are no longer a one-way support system, but a worldwide collaboration as Friends work together. Global partnership is a spiritual act of cultivating seeds of new life in Africa and the world.
