

Join the Armour Team Today!

Are you passionate about logistics, love solving complex puzzles, and thrive in a fast-paced environment? We're looking for a Load Planner who can turn strategy into action, improve fleet performance, and keep freight moving efficiently across the region. This is your opportunity to play a key role in a high-impact team—where every decision you make helps reduce costs, improve delivery times, and drive real results for our business and customers.

What You'll Do

- Build smart, efficient freight plans that reduce empty miles and boost delivery capacity.
- Match the right loads to the right trucks—balancing destinations, deadlines, and fleet availability like a pro.
- Keep a pulse on multiple moving parts: driver hours, loading sequences, mileage, service windows—you name it.
- Proactively find capacity to move freight and keep things flowing.
- Tackle problem shipments with urgency and precision.
- Keep stakeholders informed by monitoring shipment status and flagging issues before they become problems.
- Act as the go-to contact for both internal teams and external clients—making sure everyone's in the loop and on the same page.

What You Bring

- 2+ years of experience in transportation, logistics, or a related field.
- Relevant certifications (e.g., CITT) or education in logistics, supply chain, or transportation is an asset.
- A strong understanding of Atlantic Canada geography is a bonus!

You'll Excel If You Are

- A multitasking master with excellent time management skills.
- A self-starter who thrives on making smart, data-driven decisions.
- A natural problem-solver who can think fast and negotiate effectively.
- Adaptable and calm under pressure—even when priorities shift or timelines tighten.

Tech You Know

- Comfortable with Microsoft Office tools—especially Excel and Outlook.
- Familiarity with TruckMate or similar TMS software? That's a plus.

What to Expect

A dynamic, fast-paced environment where no two days are the same.

High-energy communication via phone, email, and satellite systems.

The chance to make a real difference in our daily operations and bottom line.

Sound like a role made for you? Let's talk! Apply now and bring your logistics know-how to a team that values strategy, speed, and smart solutions.
