Principles

This month, we are focusing on Principles.

We are committed to developing not just strong students, but strong character. This month, we are highlighting the Learner Profile trait Principled.

Being principled means acting with honesty, and integrity. It means doing the right thing, even when no one is watching. Principled students take responsibility for their actions.

Together, we can help our students grow into confident, ethical, and compassionate leaders who make positive contributions to the world.

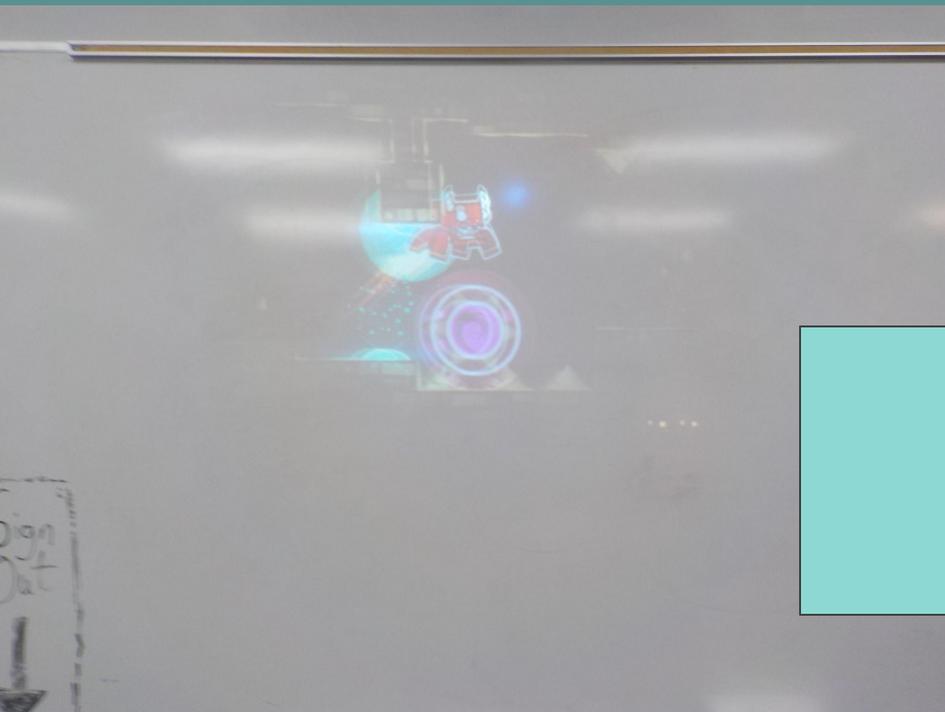

Mr Minner's Message

This is the time of year when everything seems difficult - the long breaks are mostly over; many of us are sick of the weather ; classes are getting tougher.

During the most difficult times, I believe that people must band together. The easy road is to become angry, lash out at others, or just give up. The true path – the one road we all travel together – is to be kind, despite your frustration ; be present, even if you are tired ; be the best you can be from day to day.

Think about the sort of world we could have if everyone was excessively kind, knowing that many people are going through tough times.
