ACA_BASELINE. One of the key issues in the shutdown is enhanced Affordable Care Act subsidies. Enhanced ACA subsidies are taxpayer-funded subsidies created as temporary COVID-19 relief in 2021. They currently reduce premiums for about 22 million Americans who don't get coverage through work, Medicare, or Medicaid when purchasing health insurance on the ACA marketplace. The subsidies are set to expire on December 31st.

[SPLIT SAMPLE ON ACA_DEM_ARGUMENT and ACA_GOP_ARGUMENT. Respondents saw only one of the below arguments]

ACA_DEM_ARGUMENT. This is about more than just subsidies. It's about whether we stand up to Donald Trump's attacks on healthcare or cave to his threats. Trump and Republicans control Washington but refuse to extend subsidies while pushing massive tax cuts for billionaires, and now millions of Americans will see their premiums more than double, with families paying over $2,000 more per year and older Americans facing increases of $10,000 or more. If we give in and reopen the government without protecting healthcare, Trump wins and working families lose. We need to draw a line and fight for healthcare.

Should Democrats refuse to reopen the government until they get a commitment to extend the enhanced ACA subsidies, or should they reopen the government and negotiate on this later?

Response	Count	Overall	Rep	Dem	Ind
Refuse to reopen until they get a commitment to extend the subsidies	469	38%	15%	63%	33%
Reopen the government and negotiate after	688	55%	77%	34%	55%
Don't know	89	7%	8%	3%	12%

ACA_GOP_ARGUMENT. Democrats shut down the government to demand we pour $350 billion into a broken healthcare system that isn't working for American families. The subsidies they're fighting for were temporary COVID emergency relief that ended years ago, but Democrats want to make them permanent even though they don't actually lower healthcare costs. All these subsidies do is force taxpayers to cover the bill while insurance companies keep raising prices.

Republicans want to negotiate on healthcare, but shutting down the government and making millions suffer isn't the way to do it. We're not cutting healthcare, we're eliminating the waste, fraud, and abuse that's made the system so expensive in the first place. What we need are private sector solutions that bring real competition and drive down costs for everyone, not another $350 billion thrown at a failing government program.

Should Democrats refuse to reopen the government until they get a commitment to extend the enhanced ACA subsidies, or should they reopen the government and negotiate on this later?

ACA_FORCED_CHOICE. Below are two different arguments about the enhanced ACA subsidies. Please tell me which comes closer to your view, even if neither is exactly right.

Argument A: This is about more than subsidies. It's about standing up to Trump's attacks on healthcare. Trump and Republicans control Washington but refuse to extend subsidies while pushing massive tax cuts for billionaires. Millions of Americans will see their premiums more than double, with families paying over $2,000 more per year and older Americans facing increases of $10,000 or more. If we give in without protecting healthcare, Trump wins and working families lose.

Argument B: Democrats want to pour $350 billion into a broken healthcare system that isn't working. These subsidies were temporary COVID emergency relief that ended years ago, but Democrats want to make them permanent even though they don't lower healthcare costs. They just force taxpayers to cover the bill while insurance companies keep raising prices. We need private sector solutions that bring real competition and drive down costs for everyone, not another $350 billion thrown at a failing government program.

ACA_REFORM. Currently, Affordable Care Act subsidies are provided by the government to insurance companies to lower premiums for people who buy coverage through the health insurance marketplace.

Shutdown Compromises

VOTE_ONLY_AFTER_REOPEN. Some Republicans have proposed that if Democrats vote for the funding resolution to reopen the government, they will commit to holding a vote on extending the enhanced ACA subsidies after the government is reopened, but they will not guarantee that the extension will pass.

REFORMED_EXTENSION_WITH_REOPEN. Some Republicans have proposed passing an extension of the enhanced ACA subsidies as part of reopening the government, but with reforms like new income limits, new anti-fraud measures to reduce waste, and more time to negotiate a longer-term extension.

Some Democrats have proposed that Republicans include a clean one-year extension of the enhanced ACA subsidies as part of the funding resolution to reopen the government, with no changes to the current program, and then establish a bipartisan committee to negotiate longer-term reforms after the government reopens.

The Senate filibuster is a Senate rule that requires 60 votes to end debate on most bills so the Senate can vote on passage. This means a simple majority of 51 votes is not enough to pass most bills unless 60 votes to end debate are reached first.

Some items are exceptions in the Senate and can pass with a simple majority (e.g., budget reconciliation bills; most nominations).

Importantly, the filibuster is not in the U.S. constitution but is a Senate rule that has been in steady use in its current form since 1975.

Currently: Republicans hold 53 Senate seats. Under the filibuster rule, they need at least 7 Democratic votes to end debate and pass most legislation.

FILIBUSTER PHILOSOPHY. Which statement comes closer to your view about the Senate filibuster?

Response	Overall	Rep	Dem	Ind
The filibuster should be reformed or eliminated. The American people elected a President and majorities in both chambers of Congress. Those elected officials should be able to enact their agenda with a simple majority vote. The filibuster allows the minority party to block progress and create gridlock that harms everyone.	35%	45%	28%	29%
The filibuster serves as an important check on power by preventing any single party from making extreme changes and forcing bipartisan compromise and should be preserved in its current form. Without it, policies would swing dramatically every time control of the Senate changes, creating instability and uncertainty.	50%	42%	59%	51%

Methodology

Interview Dates	November 7 th – November 9 th , 2025
Target Population	National registered voters
Sampling Method	The survey was administered using a non-probability online panel with voter verification protocols. All respondents were matched to a commercial voter file to confirm registration status. Quota controls were applied during recruitment to ensure representative coverage of age, region, race, gender, and educational attainment within the registered voter population as well as soft targets on self-party identification based on modeled results from historical survey data
Weighting	The sample was weighted using a multi-level iterative proportional fitting (raking) approach. First-stage weighting adjusted for demographics (age, gender, educational attainment, race), geography (region, area type), and recalled 2024 presidential vote. Second-stage weighting adjusted for party identification and voter political engagement metrics. Weighting targets were derived from comprehensive analysis of national voter files, certified 2024 election results, and U.S. Census demographic data to ensure accurate representation of the national registered voter population and the 2024 electorate.
Number of respondents	1475
Margin of error	+/- 2.6 % (95% CI)
Survey Modes	100% voter verified online panel
