Top Priorities for MarTech: AI, Platforms, and Scaled Activation

Market Coverage & Analysis

Martech investment continues to accelerate as AI-driven personalization, expanding AdTech budgets, and active M&A shape the landscape. CMOs are prioritizing AI adoption amid rising expectations for integration, measurement, and data-driven execution.

Notable transactions include:

- Adobe acquired Semrush, a leading SEO and generative search optimization platform, in November for approximately $1.9B in cash.
- Novacap acquired Integral Ad Science, a digital ad-verification and brand-safety provider, in September at a valuation of $1.9B.
- Salesforce acquired Bluebirds, an AI-powered enterprise prospecting platform in July for $1.1B.

Martech Investment Outlook and Signal

AI-driven personalization, automation, and orchestration continue to dominate MarTech roadmaps, attracting investment in platforms that unify data, activation, and measurement.

Global AdTech spend is expected to more than double by 2030, sustaining strong investor interest across DSPs, SSPs, retail media, and analytics platforms.

Retail media networks, CTV, and digital out-of-home are capturing incremental budgets, driving MarTech investment in commerce-based targeting and attribution.

Active M&A and private equity interest remain focused on profitable, privacy-compliant platforms offering scalable omnichannel capabilities.

Challenges Moving Forwards

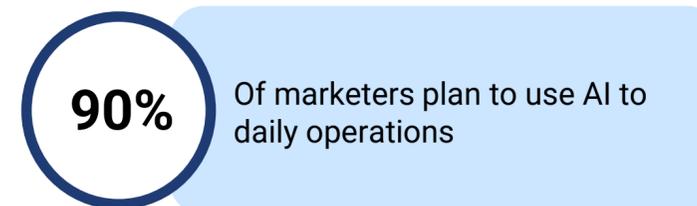

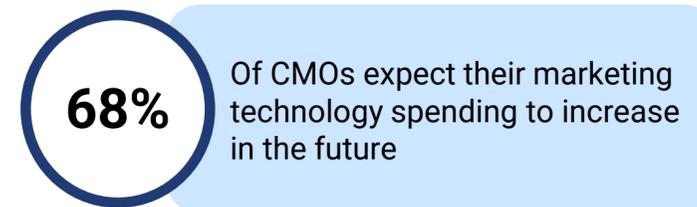

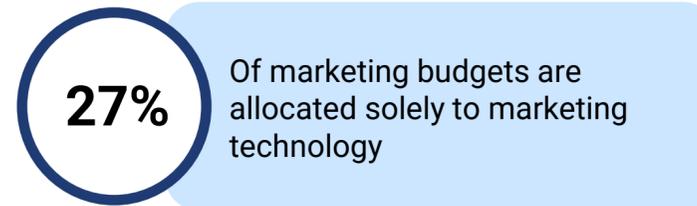

Privacy regulation waves and third-party cookie deprecation demand heavy investment in consent management and first-party data infrastructure.

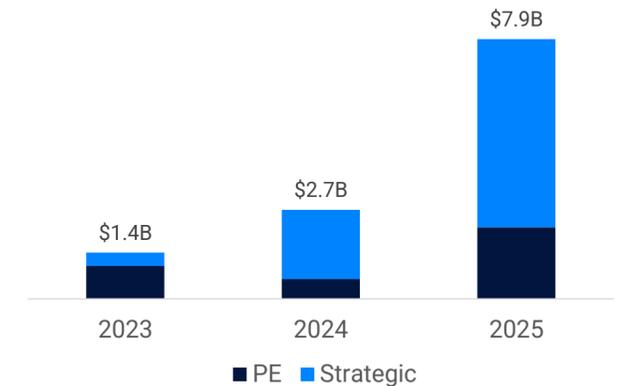

Fragmentation across CTV, retail media, and social platforms continues to complicate measurement, attribution, and cross-channel optimization.

Macroeconomic uncertainty, talent shortages and consolidation pressures challenge MarTech providers, exposing unit economics and heightening expectations.

Quarterly Spotlight: Creator & Content Economy

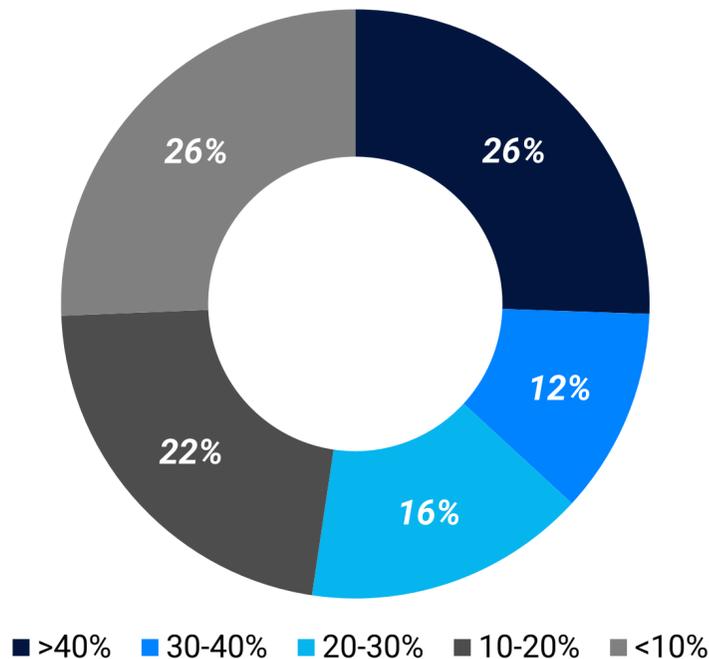

Market Coverage & Analysis

Creator economy spending, next-generation UGC infrastructure, and AI-powered MarTech innovation are converging to redefine the modern marketing stack and elevate creators into core performance channels. This evolution is unlocking new levers for scalable, high-ROI growth across digital media.

Creator Channels Become a Core Budget Line

- Creator ad spend scales quickly: U.S. creator-economy ad spend rose from $30B in 2024 to hit a forecasted $37B in 2025, a 26% YoY increase and 4x the growth of total media.
- Influencer marketing is now mainstream: Surveys show >80% of marketers use influencer marketing in their mix and 63% plan to boost influencer marketing spending, reflecting strong ROI versus traditional digital channels.
- Creator content is full-funnel: Brands increasingly repurpose creator and user-generated content (UGC) assets into paid social, programmatic, onsite content and CRM, expanding demand for tools that manage creator workflows, rights, and performance measurement.

Share of Marketing Budgets Spent on Influencer Marketing

Influencer spend is material, not experimental

Nearly half of marketers allocate 20-40% of budgets to influencer marketing, signaling it is a core channel rather than a test-and-learn tactic.

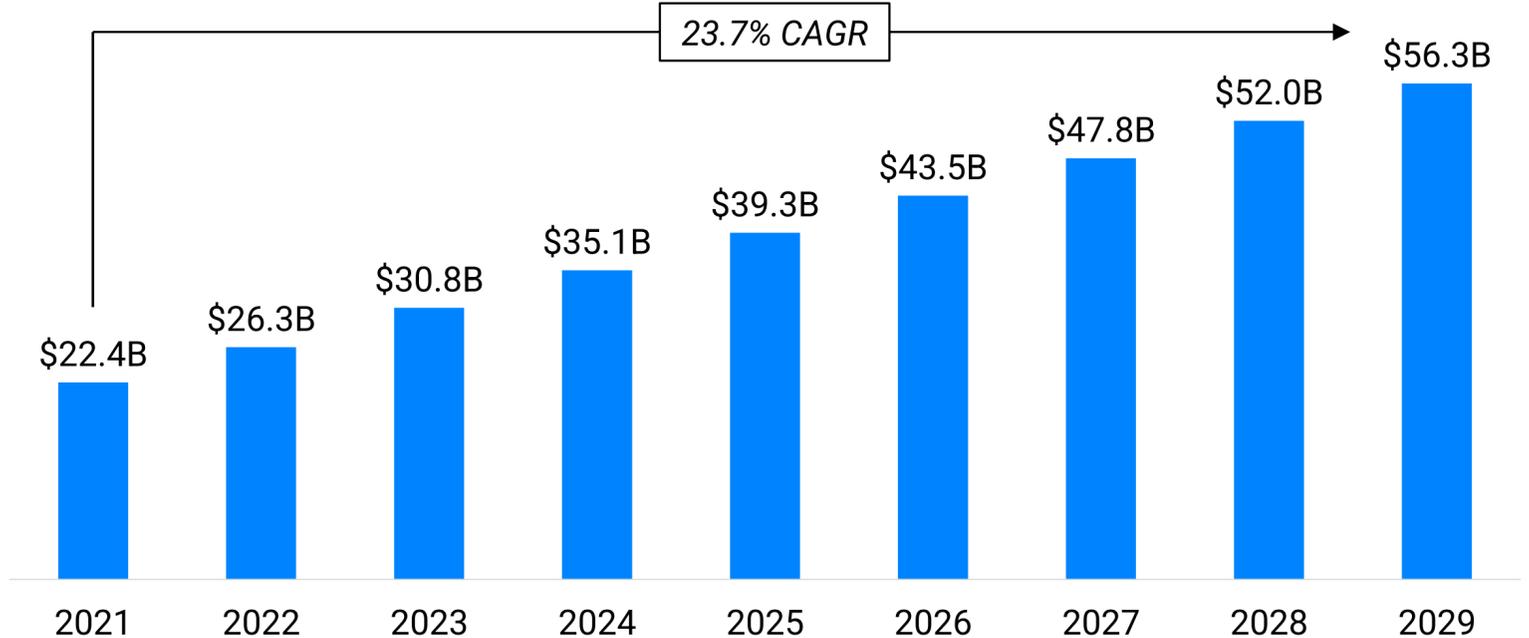

Budgets are polarized

Spend is split between heavy adopters and light users, suggesting uneven maturity and opportunity for consolidation or platform-driven efficiency.

UGC, Authenticity & AI Reshape the Martech Stack

- Authenticity premium: 84% of millennials say they trust brands more when they use content from real customers, and marketers report consumers view UGC as 2-3x more authentic than brand-produced creative, pushing advertisers toward creator-led formats.
- Explosive growth in UGC platforms: The user-generated-content platform market has grown from $4.4B in 2022 to an estimated $6.1B+ in 2025 and is expected to reach $50B by 2032, driving sustained demand for UGC aggregation and modernization.
- AI-enabled creator Martech: AI-enabled creator marketing is rapidly expanding as marketers adopt AI to enhance creator selection, campaign optimization, and workflows, driving growing demand for data-rich platforms integrated with creator marketplaces and social graph tools.

Content & Experience Lead Valuation While Other Segments Lag

Alkali MarTech Software Index Slightly Trailing NASDAQ Through Q4 2025

Content and Experience platforms maintain the strongest valuations within MarTech due to their direct link to revenue generation, customer engagement, monetization potential, and their rapid adoption of AI-enabled content workflows, while other segments grow more slowly as their value propositions mature.

2025 Multiples Slightly Trail 2024 as Economic Uncertainty Tightens Budgets

Transaction Multiples Past 24 Months

While a handful of high-multiple outliers continue to lift the upper end of the range, the broader 2024–2025 MarTech transaction landscape reflects steady, disciplined EV/Revenue valuations that consistently normalize around the 3x median, underscoring stable buyer expectations and rational pricing dynamics. Squeezed budgets and poor retention are reflected in slightly lower multiples. Transaction volume remains steady but since 2024, investors and acquirers have tightened their standards resulting in fewer outlier deals in 2025.
