

Chantyl Vasquez

ASSOCIATE

Chantyl Vasquez is a judicious advocate for her clients, prioritizing their goals and well-being in their contentious family law matters pertaining to divorce, child custody, support and visitation, and domestic violence, among all others. From the law office of DeLacey, Riebel & Shindell, LLP, in San Francisco, California, she serves clients throughout the surrounding areas and beyond.

During her undergraduate studies at California State University Channel Islands, Ms. Vasquez was the editor-in-chief of the Channel Islands View Newspaper, vice chair of the ASI board of directors and part of the Pi Sigma Alpha honor society. Her academic prowess and heavy involvement in many activities led her to be the student commencement speaker for her graduation. She earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in political science and government in 2014.

Later, Ms. Vasquez went on to attend Southwestern Law School, where she strengthened her shrewd legal acumen and talents that are still evident in the advocacy she provides for her clients today. During her time there, she was a part of the Music Law Society and a member of the Negotiation Honors Program. After receiving her Juris Doctor in 2017, she became licensed to practice law in California a year later.

In a relatively short time, Ms. Vasquez has garnered the adulation of her peers for her efficacious counsel, emphasizing personalized attention, meticulous focus and a relentless work ethic. She understands the emotional strain her clients are in, and she strives to take on all the legal burden so they can focus on themselves and their loved ones during this difficult time. In the same vein, she works hard to progress the standard of client care in her legal community through legal organizations such as the San Joaquin County Bar Association and the California Lawyers Association.
