How To Get Started With Biblically Responsible Investing

Introduction to Biblically Responsible Investing

There is a movement underway in the world of finance where Christians are investing billions of dollars intentionally to support biblical values for the glory of God, and it is called Biblically Responsible Investing (BRI). More and more Christians are waking up to the opportunity to align their investments with biblical values, as well as discovering the unsettling truth that they have previously been profiting from immoral businesses such as abortion, sexually explicit, human trafficking and other unbiblical practices. The growing demand for biblically responsible investments is changing the landscape of Wall Street and gaining global recognition as a powerful force for positive change for God's glory throughout the world. However, many Christian investors are at a loss for how to get started with biblically responsible investing, but biblically responsible investing does not have to be complicated. Following is a step-by-step guide to make it simple and easy to implement biblically responsible investing in your financial life.

“ Christians control $6.7 trillion of assets in the U.S., not counting their primary residence, and they are increasingly looking for an investment approach that supports their point of view. ”

Step 1: Discover What You Own From A Biblically Responsible Investing Perspective

The first step in the journey towards biblically responsible investing is to discover the truth about what you own in your investment account. What are the companies that you own in your 401(k), IRA, mutual funds, ETFs and other investments doing to turn a profit? Are they manufacturing abortion drugs, selling sexually explicit content, using slave labor in their supply chains? Are they donating money to Planned Parenthood? Lobbying to advance the LGBT agenda? In his bestselling book, “Biblically Responsible Investing: For God’s Glory and Your Joy”, Inspire CEO and founder, Robert Netzly, recalls his BRI discovery moment:

“I vividly remember the moment that I discovered the troubling truth of what I was invested in,” says Netzly, “and how shocked I was to find that here I was, the president of our local pro-life pregnancy center, and I also owned stock in 3 companies through my mutual funds that were manufacturing abortion drugs. That means that every time a young woman went to Planned Parenthood and had an abortion, I was profiting from that transaction. That realization changed my life forever, as it has for countless other biblically responsible investors around the world today.”

The Problem Is More Widespread Than People Realize

Investors typically only look at the financial aspect of an investment prior to investing. Most investors never even consider the moral behavior of the companies they are investing in.

Many investors are surprised to learn they are profiting from and supporting these unbiblical activities within their investment portfolios.

SO, HOW DO YOU FIND OUT WHAT THE MORAL VALUE OF YOUR PORTFOLIO IS? It is certainly a daunting task to consider, and quite impossible for the average investor to compile the amount of research necessary to dig into the dirty details of every company in their portfolio. After all, it is hard enough just to read your quarterly statement without going cross-eyed, let alone pour through thousands of hard-to-find data points on thousands of publicly traded companies.

“Biblically responsible investing (BRI) is a space with enormous potential.”

Step 2: Explore Biblically Responsible Investing Options

If you are like most Christian investors, once you discover the moral issues in your current portfolio you will want to make a change as soon as possible. So, how do you build a biblically responsible investing portfolio? Upon learning about biblically responsible investing, some Christian investors have the concern that it will be difficult to find enough quality biblically responsible investment options to construct an outstanding portfolio that meets their financial goals. But praise God that the fact of the matter is that the overwhelming majority of companies pass even the most stringent biblically responsible investing screening criterion so that there is no shortage of quality companies for biblically responsible investors to allocate capital to. There are also a large and growing number of biblically responsible investing mutual funds, including lower cost ETFs that one would assume are managed according to biblically responsible investing guidelines, but in fact do very little (or sometimes zero) investment screening. Also, not every Christian financial advisor is trained or equipped in biblically responsible investing, so do not just assume because your advisor is a Christian that they are managing your investments according to biblical values. Many Christian advisors, just like Christian investors, still have no idea that there is a major moral dilemma present in the portfolios they manage. As a good steward of God's investments, be sure to do your other portfolio: consider the risks, returns, fees, diversification and other important aspects to build your biblically responsible investing portfolio.

Step 3: Start Biblically Responsible Investing And Impact The World For God's Glory!

After discovering what you own from a biblically responsible investing perspective, and then exploring your biblically responsible investing options, it is time to pull the proverbial trigger and become a biblically responsible investor, joining the growing number of other Christian investors in the biblically responsible investing movement!

As Inspire CEO, Robert Netzly, writes in his book:

“The BRI movement is an exciting phenomenon that Wall Street is completely unprepared for. I have spoken with thousands of Christian investors and advisors over the past several years and I can attest to the fact that there is an awakening going on where the Holy Spirit is illuminating the importance of investing for God's glory and placing a passionate conviction in the hearts of His people zealous to honor God in their financial life, just as they do in other areas of life.

God makes it clear in His word, the Holy Bible, that He wants His people to manage His money according to His values for His glory, and our joy. “So whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God.” (1 Corinthians 10:31) Christians control trillions of dollars in investment assets, and together we can inspire transformation for God's glory throughout the world by aligning our investments (God's investments!) with biblical values, sending a powerful message to Wall Street and corporations everywhere that God's people care about biblical values enough to "put our money where our faith is".

There are already biblically responsible investing success stories, such as corporations ending their philanthropic support of Planned Parenthood and hotels removing pornography from their televisions, and by the grace of God we will see even more of these inspiring stories unfolding. But, even if nothing changes and corporations continue to go from bad to worse, it is still the biblically responsible investor's joy to glorify God by honoring His values with His investment assets. One day we will all stand before our Lord and give an account for what we have done with all He has given us during our time on earth. I want to hear the "well done, good and faithful servant. Enter into the joy of your master" regarding every part of my life, including how I managed God's investments. What about you?"

BACKED BY RESEARCH

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

In 2014, the University of Oxford reviewed 190 academic studies on the relationship between sustainability and firm performance finding:

80% of the studies suggested a positive relationship between good sustainability practices and stock performance.

88% indicated firms' performance was improved by strong environmental, social and governance practices.

PERFORMANCE IMPACT STUDY

A 2016 study by Shane Enete, Ph.D., CFA at Biola University's Inspire Research Institute For Biblically Responsible Investing, has shown that applying certain biblical investment screening methodology to portfolio security selection generate outperformance in a portfolio when compared to broader, non-screened benchmarks. This finding adds new data to the debate of what effect biblically responsible investing (BRI) screening has on the performance of a portfolio. While screening a portfolio does not guarantee favorable returns, this study clearly shows that using biblically responsible investing does have the potential to provide outperformance when compared to a non-screened benchmark.

Biola Study Results

"The results of the study found that the [biblical investing] methodology of security selection resulted in an annualized outperformance compared to the non-screened benchmark."
