

Every Family Should Have a Dog

I think every family should have a dog because dogs just make everything better. My cousin has one, and I'm always happy to see him, even if he just went to the mailbox. It waits at the door and wags its tail like crazy. When he's sad, the dog just lies next to him and doesn't say anything, but somehow it helps. Dogs are fun to play with, and you never feel bored when they're around. You can tell them secrets, and they don't tell anyone. If I had a dog, I'd give it a name like Pickles or Noodle and let it sleep at the end of my bed. I'd take care of it and teach it tricks and maybe even dress it up for Halloween. I really think families feel nicer with a dog around. It's like having a best friend who never leaves.
