Grown-ups: Think of compound words (a word made up of two other words), and write them down on separate bits of paper. Snip the compound words in half and mix them all up. Can your little one join the single words to make the correct compound?

At a cafe, can you find Plusman working his superpower? Is there a tea + pot = teapot? Or a cup + cake = cupcake?

Doodle a picture that includes two words AND their compound word e.g. a man in the snow building a... snowman!

Take a word e.g. 'room'. Shout out what words Plusman could put before it to make a brand new word? How about 'living' or 'bath'?
