HOLLAND BROTHERS FURNITURE BUILDING

Originally constructed in 1914, the Holland Brothers Furniture Building housed a series of furniture companies during the twentieth century but fell into disrepair in recent decades. The 2016 historic rehabilitation successfully transformed vacant space into a vibrant mixed-use building integrated into the urban fabric of downtown Durham.

The renovation was comprehensive—all building systems were modernized to meet the needs of today's tenants. The development team studied photographic evidence to recreate the original storefront and cornice; removed, reinstalled, and refinished hardwoods; restored the historic stair, plaster walls, and tin ceiling. The result is modern building performance with historic character, with natural light on three sides, and a new roof deck provides panoramic skyline views.
