

SMART Goal: Completing PMP Certification in 90 Days

The PMP is the global gold standard in project management. Certification typically takes 8-12 weeks. Our SMART goal outlines a focused strategy to achieve this within 90 days.

Made with GAMMA

Background: What Is the PMP Certification?

Offered by PMI

The Project Management Institute offers the PMP.

Validates Expertise

It validates project leadership skills and expertise.

Key Requirements

Requires 36 months experience, a bachelor's degree, and 35 hours of PM education.

Specific: Define the Certification Goal

Our specific goal is clear and actionable. It focuses on tangible steps toward success.

Achieve PMP Certification

Obtain PMP certification from PMI within 90 days.

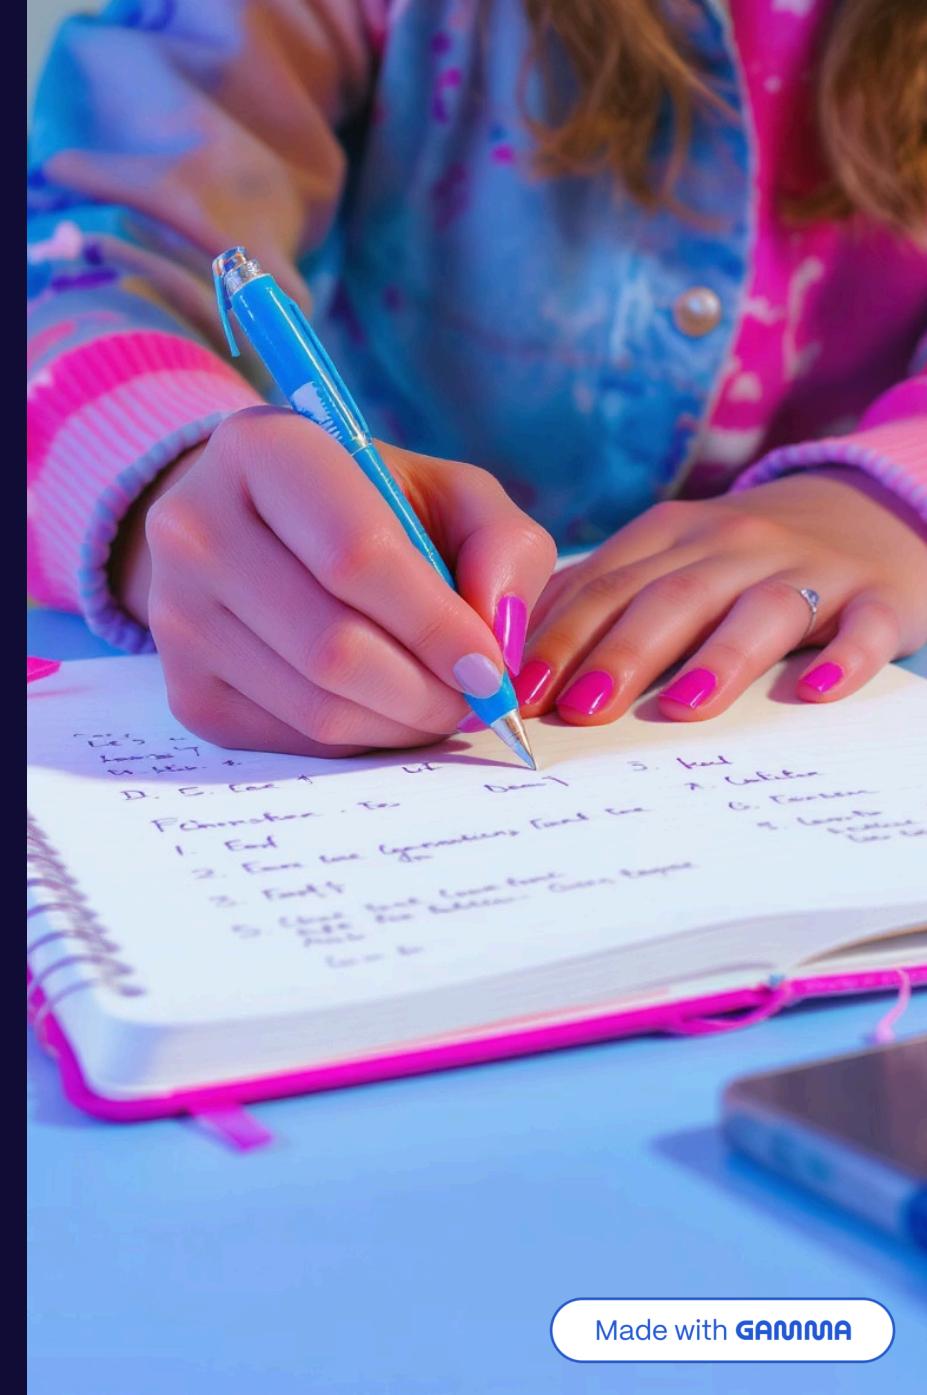

Complete All Steps

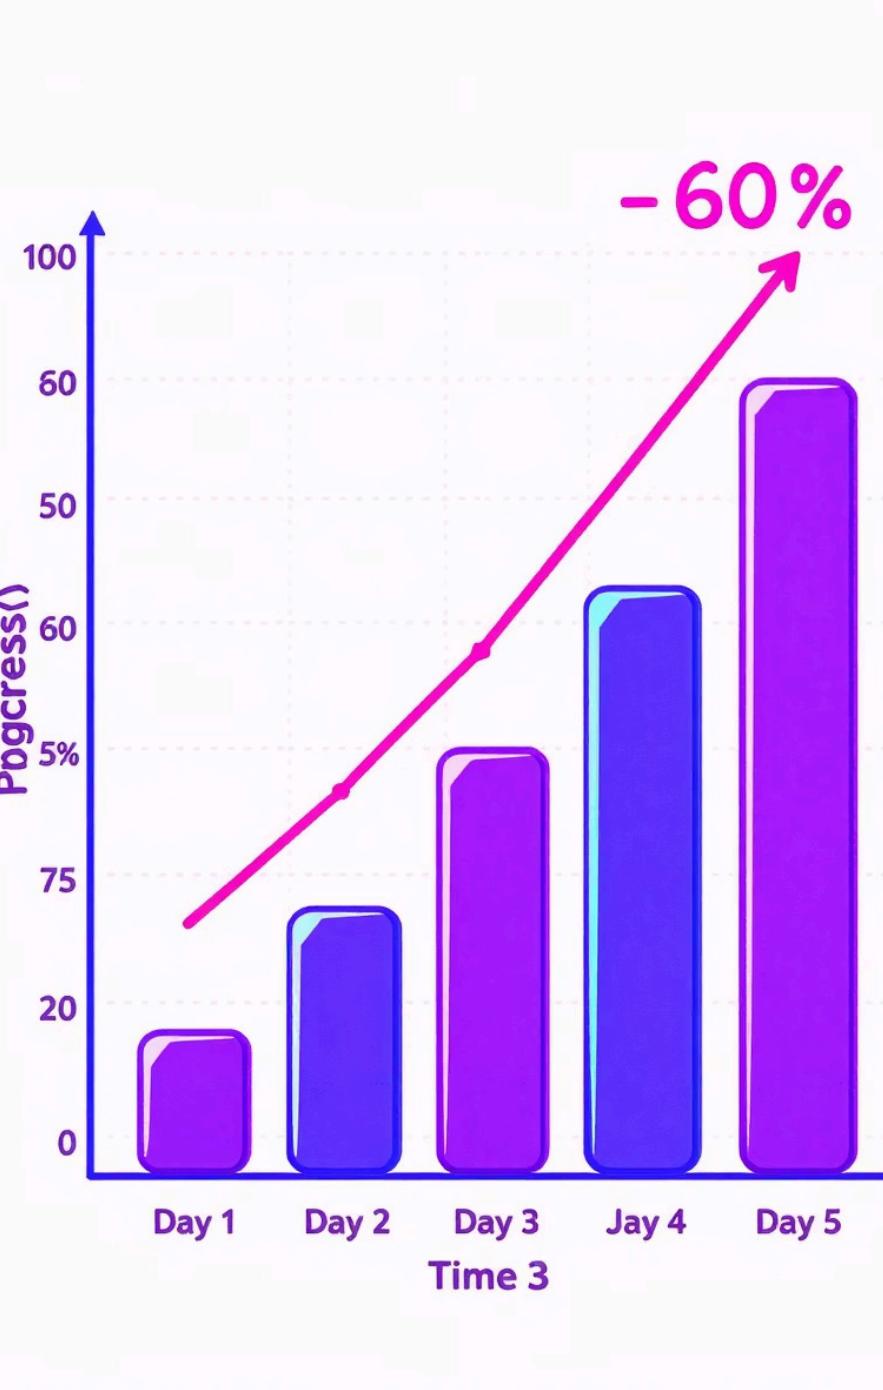

Complete the application, study prerequisites, and pass the exam.

Align with Growth

This goal aligns with career growth and leadership opportunities.

Measurable: Tracking Progress

Tracking progress ensures we stay on target. Milestones provide clear checkpoints.

- 1 Week 1
Application submitted.
- 2 Week 2
35+ hours of PM education completed.
- 3 Daily Study
2-3 hours/day, 150-200 total study hours.
- 4 Weekly Exams
Weekly practice exams monitor knowledge level.

Achievable: Ensuring Realism

The 90-day goal is ambitious yet realistic for dedicated candidates. Several factors contribute to its achievability.

Standard PMP prep takes 8-12 weeks for dedicated candidates. This timeline is well-established.

Eligible candidates with prior project experience can fast-track the process significantly.

Access to online courses, study groups, and practice tests improves speed and effectiveness.

Relevant & Time-Bound: Why 90 Days Matters

A clear deadline enhances motivation and aligns with career advancement. This time frame offers significant benefits.

Time-Bound	90-day deadline enhances focus.
Relevance	PMP boosts job prospects and salary.
Backward Plan	Application (W1), Prep (W2-10), Exam (W12).

Conclusion: Benefits and Next Steps

The 90-day plan is achievable and aligns with industry timelines. This demonstrates commitment and capability.

