PATAGONIAN RAIL & WILDERNESS

12 FEBRUARY – 5 MARCH 2027 • 22 DAYS

JOURNEY TO THE EDGE OF THE WORLD

Patagonia is where vast wilderness, ancient ice, and boundless skies meet. On this 22-day expedition, you will explore this majestic landscape by road, remote fjord ferries, regional flights, and boat, punctuated by legendary, isolated heritage rail journeys. Rather than a continuous rail line, our route uses specialized overland and marine transit to link the most historic, far-flung train tracks of the continent—from the coastal lines of the central valley to the vintage steam cars of the deep south.

Our main group itinerary handles the core overland expedition from Santiago down to Punta Arenas. From Punta Arenas, you can choose to conclude your journey or continue on our customized wilderness extension to Tierra del Fuego. This is an adventure designed for genuine discovery, honest comfort, and unforgettable moments.

WHAT TO EXPECT ON THE ROAD

This is a premium, small-group trip built for independent travelers who want a real, authentic journey without sacrificing a good night's sleep. We hand-pick our hotels to ensure they have genuine local character, welcoming staff, and the best possible locations for our route.

However, because we travel deep into isolated territories, some remote stops simply do not have high-end, luxury hotels. In places like Constitución and Chaitén, we skip generic tourist hotels and stay at the best local lodges around. They are simple, clean, and incredibly welcoming places that give you a comfortable bed and an honest taste of regional hospitality.

THE DEEP SOUTH EXTENSION: WILDER TIERRAS DEL FUEGO

For the true explorer, the journey does not end at the continental edge. This exclusive wilderness extension carries us beyond the Strait of Magellan and deep into the dramatic, sub-Antarctic frontiers of the extreme south. Traveling by bush plane, remote cross-channel vessels, and historic steam rails, we venture to the very ends of the earth. ## CRITICAL EXPEDITION PROTOCOL: WEATHER CONTINGENCY DISCLOSURE

Patagonia's sub-Antarctic climate is famously wild and unpredictable. While March historically delivers stable trekking and flying weather, our safety and routing depend entirely on local elements:

Flight Disruption (Day 18): If severe weather grounds our flight to Puerto Williams, our team will activate an overland expedition vehicle to execute a long-distance drive across the border to Río Grande, advancing onward to Ushuaia by road the next day.

Beagle Channel Crossing (Day 19): Our water crossing from Puerto Williams to Ushuaia requires safe maritime conditions. Should high storms close the channel, the crossing will safely slide to Day 20 or 21. While this may mean missing some scheduled activities in Ushuaia, our team will dynamically adapt the program.

By embarking on this deep wilderness extension, participants accept that flexibility and program adaptations are an authentic part of frontier exploration.

Gliding across the crystal-blue international waters of the Beagle Channel on the scenic maritime crossing to Argentina.
