

SOAR and FATE are proud to announce Ashes to Action, an inspiring evening dedicated to honoring hope, resilience, and the power of community. This special event honors veteran mentors and community leaders from Alta Dena and Pacific Palisades who are making a lasting impact in the rebuilding the Palisades and Altadena regions.

Through this initiative, Life Aid is supporting veteran-led mentorship for at-risk transitional youth, helping them receive trade certification, hands-on training, and direct job placement with home builders and general contractors rebuilding homes and businesses in the affected communities.

Participating youth will also benefit from resilience and mindset training, along with access to the LifeScore app, a digital tool that allows them to track their physical, mental, and emotional health. The app connects them to peer support, resources, and real-time assistance—right from their phones.

“This is more than just rebuilding structures—it’s about rebuilding lives,” said Founder John Wordin. “Our veterans bring unmatched leadership, skill, and compassion, guiding young people toward stable careers and brighter futures while strengthening the very communities they serve.”

The evening will feature stories of transformation, recognition of veteran mentors and community leaders, and a shared commitment to turning hardship into opportunity. Proceeds from the event will go to funding showcase events connecting at-risk youth with opportunities to create a better future. Guests will experience firsthand how the ashes of devastation can spark a movement of action, hope, and growth.
