For Donor Advised Funds

We are pleased to have our supporters recommend grants through a Donor Advised Fund (DAF). To comply with federal tax regulations, DAF grants cannot be used (1) to pay for event tickets, purchase sponsorships that include benefits (e.g., table seats, meals, recognition), or for any other benefit that include goods, services, or attendance privileges, or (2) to fulfill personal pledges or provide any tangible benefit to the donor/advisor. Below are ways you can support our event through a DAF:

1. You can recommend a DAF grant for the desired giving level and, in a separate transaction, pay with personal funds the fair market value for the desired number of event tickets.
2. You can recommend a DAF grant for the desired giving level and decline all benefits. The federal tax regulations applicable to DAF grants are to ensure such grants are entirely charitable and thus tax-deductible, and not a means of receiving more than an incidental benefit in return. Grants that confer more than an incidental benefit may create excise taxes or penalties for donors, advisors, and sponsoring organizations.
