

Cyber breach services

Data breach is not a new risk in cyber insurance, but it is a threat that has been somewhat overshadowed in recent years by encryption-based ransomware attacks and resulting business interruption. Nevertheless, it ranks as the cyber risk exposure companies fear most, according to 59% of respondents in the Allianz Risk Barometer 2024. As a result, In addition to cyber security and data breach response capabilities, organizations must also focus more attention on preventing and mitigating data privacy breaches.

This is where Allianz Commercial can help. Our Allianz Cyber & Technology policy offers access to preferred breach response services from top-tier global providers. We'll connect you with experts who can help you mitigate and recover from cyber breaches for your organizations' specific needs*.

Tabletop

The Tabletop Exercise allows an organization to test their incident response plans with real-life scenarios in order to understand not only the adequacy of its IRP, but also the organization's preparedness to face an incident, make decisions and direct teams in an efficient and effective manner. Table top scenarios can include a wide variety of scenarios, beyond just ransomware events, and can be tailored to the unique exposures and industries of the policyholder. Tabletop offerings can be as low or high touch as a policyholder needs with a variety of level offerings available on a subsidized basis.

*Please note, insureds need to elect these services within 30 days of binding and complete the service within the policy period.
