4,376 Lives Changed

Friends,

I write to you from our new building downtown, where we are close to community partners, walking distance to main transit and more accessible to our clients than ever before. Only, as we all know, our building has not been fully used just yet. We haven't been able to warmly welcome our neighbors. We miss the handshakes and hugs shared, marking the success of a client who's found work, or received the keys to their first home. We miss the high fives from our loyal volunteers and the smiles that were once fully on display.

Instead of welcoming you to our new building in the spring as we planned, staff transitioned to their homes and we reimagined the work we've been doing for over fifty-three years. Our neighbors are in more need than ever before, and together, we must rise up. There will never be a time where we learn more or work faster than right now.

You, the community and supporters of our mission are the backbone of our work. Your support keeps our fight strong and our eyes on the outcomes. Despite the overwhelming circumstances, every day our hope is renewed by witnessing the resiliency of our neighbors, the strength in our community and the belief you have in our work.

All my gratitude,

Kathy Covey
