ABOUT SUSTAINABILITY NETWORK

Sustainability Network is a charitable organization that strives to build a stronger environmental community by providing environmental leaders and nonprofit organizations with programs, services, and support, helping them to increase their capacity to lead, manage and strategize. Since our founding in 1997, we have organized numerous retreats, workshops and forums, provided relevant and timely resources to the environmental community, and facilitated learning and networking among environmental leaders.

This year we continue to implement Vision2030, a collaboration with 56 high-impact environmental NGO leaders from across Canada that defined where ENGOs want to be by the end of the decade. Our other programs include Engagement Organizing, which supports people-centered campaign approaches enhanced by technology; and Climate Solutions Innovation Forum, which highlights emerging organizations reaching new audiences through innovative partnerships.

In addition to these projects, we deliver webinars, training workshops, communities of practise, and our free monthly Digest. By providing programs which increase the effectiveness of environmental organizations, we are working toward the sustainability of our environment for future generations.

LETTER FROM THE CHAIR & EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

We're living in a chaotic time, but the environmental NGO community remains strong—and Sustainability Network is here to help it grow even stronger. As challenges evolve, so do the opportunities, and we're committed to equipping environmental leaders with the tools, knowledge, and connections they need to succeed.

Last year, we launched Vision2030—a capacity-building initiative designed to strengthen the sector through seven new programs running at least through 2026. Shaped by the 56 members of the ENGO Leadership Team, these programs focus on four critical priorities:

- Justice, Equity, Diversity & Inclusion (JEDI)
- Truth & Reconciliation
- Technology
- Youth & Intergenerational Issues

But our work doesn't stop there. We bring people together. In 2024 alone, we engaged 8,700 individuals through 113 webinars, fostering knowledge-sharing, skill-building, and collaboration across the sector. Our reach extends even further through our widely read Digest, with nearly 20,000 copies distributed annually.

At Sustainability Network, we believe that a strong, well-supported environmental sector is key to creating lasting change. We're proud to stand with you—and we look forward to building a better future together.

VISION2030

Sustainability Network's Vision2030 is a multi-year program addressing four sector priorities: Truth and Reconciliation, Justice, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion (JEDI), Technology, and Youth Issues.

In 2026, we continue to foster Justice, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion (JEDI) with several offerings: the JEDI Foundations Lab and Community of Practice and Identity-Based Spaces, both led by Anna-Liza Badaloo of Anemochory Consulting, and Relational Accountability Partnerships, led by Anna-Liza Badaloo and Kerry Ann Charles.

Apathy is Boring continues to run the Youth-Friendly ENGO program in 2026. This program, a combination of a webinar, workshops, organizational consultations as well as a new community of practice is designed to help environmental organizations better engage youth.

Dr. Damien Lee and three colleagues in Gimiwan Research and Consulting offer three streams of the online series Decolonizing ENGO-First Nation Partnerships which builds ENGO staff awareness about settler colonialism. The streams include an introductory course, an advanced course and a stream For Indigenous Ears Only. A Decolonial Ambassadors program is in development.

The Vision2030 ENGO Leadership Team (pictured below) will monitor and guide us through implementation. Join us and together we'll shape the future of Canada's environmental nonprofit community!

CLIMATE SOLUTIONS INNOVATION FORUM

CSIF aims to engage aspiring environmental nonprofit founders as well as established ENGO leaders and shine a light on recently emerged and youth-led organizations that are doing things differently or reaching new audiences with unusual partnerships and approaches.

We highlight less traditional policy-oriented organizations as well as recently emerged culturally-focused ENGOs mostly at the fringes of the mainstream. We convene our community of ENGOs but also invite emerging social entrepreneurs and sustainability and business recent grads to join us. Through webinars, we highlight a leading social innovator every few months and inspire the ENGOs in our network to support and collaborate with these organizations and encourage them to reflect on their own approaches to social change.

ENGAGEMENT ORGANIZING

Engagement Organizing marries traditional organizing with technology and a culture of developing leadership in others. It represents a shift away from organizations that are expert-driven toward a model that focuses on nimble, data-driven, learning organizations that place relationship building and mobilization of supporters at the heart of their work.

Our engagement organizing work was developed alongside the Gosling Foundation's Better Organizations for Nature program and includes workshops, webinars, presentations for ENGOs to learn about this practice. This work relies on the skills and talents of contracted resource people, facilitators and the leadership of the Gosling Foundation.

WEBINARS & WORKSHOPS

The Sustainability Network provides a variety of management training and learning opportunities for the ENGO community. Training workshops are a great way to build management skills and to build important relationships. Webinars are a great way to virtually convene environmental leaders for brief learning opportunities. In many cases we are able to archive recordings of these sessions on our website so that even those unable to attend the original event can benefit.

SUSTAINABILITY NETWORK DIGEST

The Sustainability Network Digest is a monthly compilation that is provided free to subscribers, mostly staff of Canadian environmental NGOs. Each month we highlight our offerings and summarize the latest, most significant NGO management resources, studies and capacity building opportunities.

The Digest has been published for over 25 years and has over 1,300 subscribers, providing links to key articles, reports, toolkits, featured websites as well as our upcoming events.

The Digest provides pre-screened NGO capacity building resources to busy, issue-focused environmental leaders.

By providing resources and information relevant to the unique needs of the environmental nonprofit sector, we are building capacity and networks in ENGOs across the country. If not yet subscribed, visit sustainabilitynetwork.ca and sign up!
