

RESPONSIBLE LOBBYING POLICY

Our approach

Studio Graphene does not lobby the government directly and makes no financial or in-kind political contributions of any kind. Where we hold membership of industry bodies, we participate passively and do not use them as a vehicle for active lobbying.

Where we engage on public policy, directly or through an industry body:

- We engage only to contribute to a positive impact on society or the environment.
- Our positions are based on reliable and, where relevant, scientific evidence.
- We make no financial or in-kind political contributions.
- We act with integrity and in line with our Anti-Bribery Policy.
- Where we engage through an intermediary industry body, we do so consistently with this policy and will not support positions through it that conflict with our values.
- This policy is approved by our board and reviewed annually.

Governance and controls

- The Director and Founder, with board oversight, is accountable for this policy.
- We record any industry body memberships and apply a no political contributions rule, considering this policy before joining any body or taking any policy position.
- Compliance is monitored and reviewed annually through our management review.
- Concerns can be raised through our Raising a Concern page.
