GATHERING differently

At Maison du Val, working hours turn into moments of connection and conviviality, in perfect harmony with nature. Imagine your brainstorming sessions in the shade of a tree, host your workshops on the Esplanade in the gardens.

Nature's calming and energizing ambiance is sure to spark your inspiration and drive.

It's a vast playground for exploration, filled with nooks, crannies, and hidden landmarks. Take the Portrait Gallery, for example. Just next to the cinema room, in the former stables, this game room, with the feel of a secret bar, plays the quirky card by mixing portraits found on-site with those of illustrious unknowns. But the most memorable room is undoubtedly the Library, whose polished wooden shelves hold over 10,000 books. Here, time simply stands still.

THE MAISON DU VAL

In the heart of the Saint-Germain-en-Laye state forest, just 20 minutes from Paris, around a bend in the path, you suddenly come face to face with a grand house with a wild charm...

A rich history is felt as soon as you approach: frequented by François I, Henri II, and Louis XIV, the Château du Val was originally one of the many hunting lodges in the Saint-Germain-en-Laye forest. It soon became the residence of Louis XIV, who had the gardens designed by the famous architect Le Nôtre before moving his court to Versailles.

During the second half of the 18th century, Château du Val became a renowned salon hosting numerous receptions, literary and philosophical gatherings. It was frequented by notable figures such as Voltaire, Rousseau, and Diderot! What better place than a residence in the heart of the forest to find inspiration?

Over the years, the estate expanded and modernized. Several centuries and many owners later, Les Maisons de Campagne have settled in this exceptional setting to write a new chapter and open their second residence, La Maison du Val.
