

Canva's exciting
new venture:
Canva for Enterprise

When Canva launched as a small Australian startup in 2013, the mission was simple: to empower the world to design.

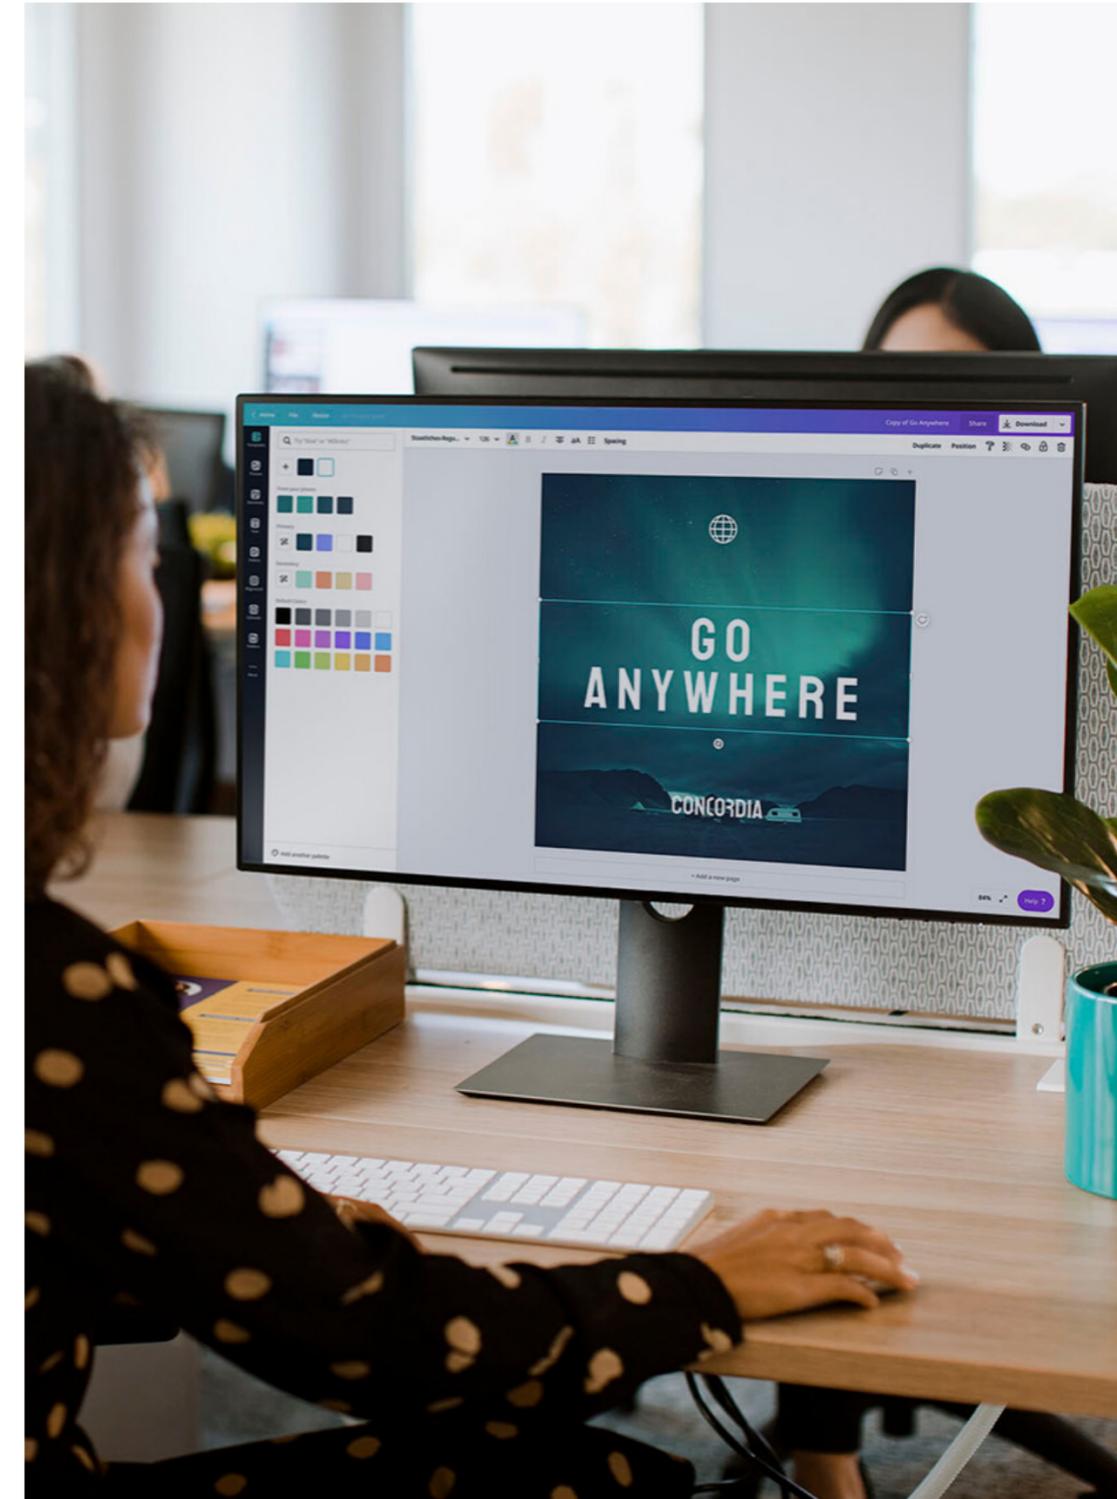

85%

of Fortune 500 companies use Canva

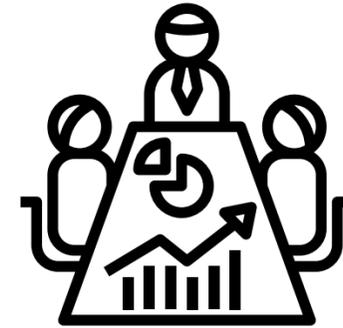

This meant creating an easy and intuitive drag-and-drop design tool for those who were professional designers, but also, those who had no previous design experience.

Fast forward six-years and Canva is set to launch one of its biggest endeavors yet: Canva for Enterprise.

With 85 percent of Fortune 500 companies already using Canva, the startup is launching a bespoke product catered to their unique design requirements.

Marketing and design teams set guidelines, everyone creates on-brand designs.

-  Brand Control. Hide Canva's design libraries and only allow access to on-brand assets.
-  Locked brand assets in templates to protect the look and feel of your brand.
-  Approval workflow. Review and approve designs before they're published.

Collaborate across brands, teams and time zones.

-  Built-in comments to collaborate on any design.
-  Team Dashboard to manage teams and assign roles.
-  Team folders to increase team visibility and engagement with shared content.

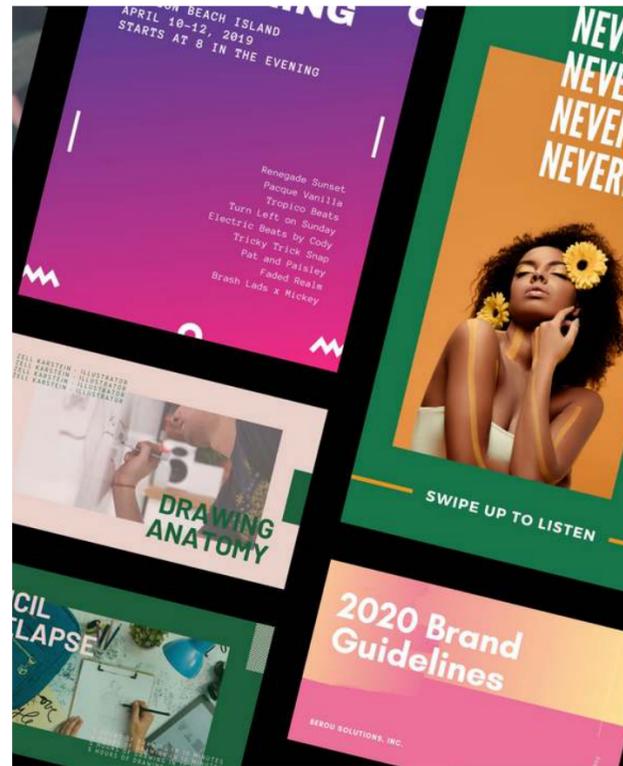

Streamline your workflow with trusted integrations.

Whether it's to import and export multi-media content from the platforms you use, keep your team in the loop or distribute marketing campaigns.

Our vision for Canva has always been to empower the whole world to design, so we are excited to take this next step and cater to the unique needs of enterprises who want to enable their whole company to design on-brand presentations, marketing materials and social media graphics. One of the challenges for enterprises who span offices, geographies and teams, has been to ensure consistent use of their brand, and we're really excited to launch a product that specifically solves these needs.

*Since we started utilizing Canva, we no longer have to rely on pre-designed material for our listings. Canva has eliminated those issues by having great original content that is user friendly to brand our listings and saves us money in the long run. We now use Canva for everything. Announcements. Brochures. Invitations to client events, etc. Literally we utilize the system for everything now. For Real Estate professionals, Canva is a home run.
