Remember

You must tell us the value that you want to insure your contents for. This value is your sum insured and must cover the cost of replacing your entire home's contents with new items should it all be lost or destroyed. If the sum insured you decide on is too low, you would be underinsured. This means that you have insured your contents for less than their replacement value and you will then have to accept a part of the loss, regardless of whether everything is lost or destroyed or only a portion thereof.

For example: You insured your home contents with us for R1 000 000. A fire damages your lounge furniture with a current replacement value of R50 000.

- When we assess your claim, we discover that the current replacement value of all the contents of your home at the time of the incident was really R2 000 000 and not R100 000 as per your sum insured.
- This means you are under-insured by 50%.
- We will then only pay R25 000 (50% of the R50 000 loss you suffered), less the amount of your excess.
