

WASHINGTON STATE COMMUNITY CONNECTORS

Connecting Families, Resources & Ideas

Who We Are

We are a family-driven community of support for caregivers of children with a range of behavioral health needs, including mental health and substance use, as well as other disabilities and challenges within the educational and judicial systems and more.

About Us

We empower families by providing training on systems in Washington state, including system navigation, leadership skills, and advocacy. This helps create better access to local health, education, and judicial systems for their children and the family as a whole, connecting them to the resources and knowledge that will allow them to be better advocates for their own family members and the community.

Want to Get Involved?

Are you hoping to make a difference and impact positive change in your local community?
Volunteer to become a Community Connector!

As the parent or caregiver of a child who has struggled, you are uniquely qualified to serve. Your expertise and passion could make a huge difference in the lives of parents, caregivers, and children who are currently struggling, and we invite you to visit our website to learn more about volunteer opportunities with WSCC, from becoming a committee member to serving on our Board.
