Rooted in simplicity and grace, the Nora Shelving Collection by the Davis Design Team was created to fulfill today's unique storage and space separation needs through a sleek, modern aesthetic. Sharing the same architectural sensibilities as the Nora Lounge Collection, this latest addition to Davis Furniture's line of storage options encourages designers to incorporate these units through a wide variety of applications within their interiors. Enriching an environment beyond simple storage, these units seek to become spirited displays in lobbies, private offices and open spaces.

"The need for a modern spatial system that complemented our other Davis products while also providing an opportunity for visual intrigue became the inception of Nora Shelving. We were inspired by the clean architectural lines of our Nora Lounge Collection, which led us to expand that unique base detail into this elegant storage system."

– Danny Davis, President, Davis Furniture

Creative and visually inspiring spatial division is essential with many of today's corporate office environments featuring open-plan layouts. Nora Shelving aptly fulfills these needs by providing designers with a novel set of components designed to be mixed and matched to create seemingly endless solutions for their interiors. Simple aluminum extrusions and square connectors establish this collection's foundation, yet Nora Shelving quickly expands itself through various options for its horizontal and vertical panels.

Combining these multiple components allows Nora to effortlessly become a highly versatile product for designers to play with and explore.

"We initially previewed a prototype of the Nora Storage system as a "prop" within our NeoCon showroom a few years ago, but the overwhelming response from the A&D community led us to begin developing it into a system that we could mass produce while ensuring the integrity of the original design remained intact."

– Rob Easton, VP of Design and Development, Davis Furniture

Nora Shelving's framework includes 5/8" aluminum extrusions which are discretely joined together with matching square connectors, giving the collection its uniquely modern silhouette. Available in over 30 powder coat colors, Nora's frame is only the beginning of this versatile product. Unexpectedly slim shelves rest between Nora's structure and are available in oak, walnut and ash veneers, powder-coated steel or Fenix® innovative materials. Furthermore, the collection boasts a range of customizable spring-activated panels for privacy and acoustics, available in powder-coated perforated metal or upholstered tackable panels, empowering the designer to choose how the piece will not only function but also whether it will blend or pop within their interior.

The collection provides units in widths of one, two, or three shelves wide and three to seven shelves high. Nora Shelving also boasts a broad range of heights, from 22" to 86", encouraging designers to specify the Nora Shelving in many ways. The low three-shelf high units function beautifully as an anchor under artwork or floating in the middle of an open office space. In contrast, taller units may be used as traditional shelving or modern space separators. Furthermore, designers can specify Nora's perforated metal or upholstered panels on either side of the unit. By alternating these panels on the front and back of a unit, designers can provide contrasting functions on either side of the piece.

The pure architecture and diverse functionality of the Nora Shelving Collection encourage designers to incorporate these units throughout varied aspects of their projects. This robust collection boasts opportunities to enrich an environment beyond simple book storage, which is sure to engage and excite users in a wide variety of applications from commercial, hospitality and even residential.

The in-house Davis Design Team comprises Industrial Designers and Engineers who share a common passion for resolving design challenges in the most beautiful way possible.
