Decriminalize Poverty

Decriminalize Poverty in Tennessee is the web project that emerged from a report by the Vera Institute of Justice and Free Hearts. This narrative experience explores how poverty has been criminalized across Tennessee, what this means for people who live in communities in the state, and practical steps to build a better future.

IX Conclusion

Throughout our research and writing process, we struggled with what to call this document:

Resource? Guide? Toolkit? Workbook?

Every option felt imperfect.

This debate was in some ways emblematic of the entire endeavor. There is no way to capture in words the complexity of working relationships between people who are incarcerated and those who are not to provide any answers to building effective partnerships effectively and ethically. But we determined that to shy away from the topic entirely out of fear of covering it insufficiently would be misguided.

We decided to present the insights we had gathered and lessons we had learned in our own experiences in an attempt to start a conversation, recognizing that others would have their own wisdom and perspectives to add and potentially disagree with some that we included here. We invite this engagement, disagreement, and dialogue.

The themes that we outlined at the start—leading with humanity, building trust, de-centering oneself, and making space for mutual learning—

Epilogue

We recognize all this is easier said than done. Engaging in advocacy through the walls, navigating the bureaucratic clout of the carceral system, and contending with the magnitude of state violence can be challenging, demoralizing, traumatizing, and overwhelming—to say the least.

This can be especially true for new advocates, who have yet to encounter or are less familiar with the many injustices inflicted by the criminal legal system on the millions of people currently caged in jails and prisons.

The truth is: every advocate experienced a moment which seemed like too much.

BIONIC PROSTHESES ARE AN EFFECTIVE AND WELL-TESTED WAY TO TAKE OVER THE FUNCTIONS OF LOST LIMBS

Prosthetic body parts had a long and exciting way of evolution to remove movement limits for people who suffered from diseases, traumas, accidents, or dangerous life situations. Until recently, prostheses were attached to the human body mechanically, and although they became increasingly sophisticated, it was impossible to connect them to the nervous system. So, it took much time and effort for the user to adapt and reach a high level of manipulation with their prosthetic limbs.

Scientists and engineers had to do a lot to make a revolutionary breakthrough and find a way to connect a mechanical limb with a person's nervous system. With the new-age prostheses, a person is able to manipulate artificial limbs directly via brain signals, as happens in natural procedures. The nerve impulses are intercepted, analyzed, processed, and converted into appropriate movements – that's the workflow of even more user-friendly, fine-tuned prosthetic limbs that enable people to get their freedom of movement back to the highest possible level. No doubt,

The goal was to create an identity and product design that would be welcoming, user-oriented, not complicated, and very approachable.

What we did

- Learned what are the common money transaction patterns of the Monserrat locals
- Designed a friendly-appealing brand identity to emphasise on the simple and amiable nature of the brand
- Developed a set of graphic elements imitating hand-drawing, which adds a human touch to fintech
- Designed an intuitive mobile app with QR-code based P2P and merchant payments
- Created a website design based on the key identity element of a ribbon, which represents continuous money transfers
