Reproduction of Bermuda Legislation and Statutory Instruments

Dear Ms Rey,

The Bermuda Shipping and Maritime Authority (BSMA) acknowledges and thanks Witherby Publishing Group for its interest in Bermuda legislation applicable to ships registered on the Bermuda ship register.

Based on our discussions, I can confirm that the BSMA recognises "Witherby Connect" incorporating your electronic library of Merchant Shipping Notices and Bermuda Statutory Instruments as electronic equivalent, enabling ship owners and operators to meet the requirements of the Merchant Shipping (Safety of Navigation) Regulations, in respect of the carriage of Merchant Shipping Notices, Marine Guidance Notices and Marine Information Notices.

Compliance however is based on the user ensuring the library is downloaded onto two or more computers onboard, to ensure a backup is always immediately available in case of failure of the primary computer and to also ensure that the library can be read in offline mode during periods of internet outages.

This recognition is given on the express understanding that the respective "M Notices" are reproduced by you exactly as published by the BSMA, in a read only format that cannot be altered by another party, and that the software automatically downloads the latest version of the eBooks and guidance notices available on Witherby's web server.

The BSMA also recognises the "Witherby Connect" as an electronic equivalent for the onboard carriage of IMO instruments such as SOLAS, MARPOL, Load Line, COLREG and STCW Conventions and Bermuda Regulations when these publications are required to be carried on board by the ship's Safety Management System manual. The recognition is given on the basis that safeguards are in place to ensure correctness of their contents and prevent illegal copying; the publications incorporate the latest available amendments; and the reproduction of IMO publications complies with the terms of your IMO licence.

Sincerely
