We should all be dreaming? Sonya Lindfors (CA/FI) & Maryan Abdulkarim

We Should All Be Dreaming invites people to spend time listening and dreaming together in an attempt to collectively imagine possible futures. Situating itself somewhere between a think tank, a choreographed gathering and a performance – the project invites participants to radically dream of new speculative futures together.

26 OCTOBER 18:00 - 19:00
INKONST

PULS PT. 3 Yared Tilahun Cederlund (SE)

From the heartbeat that gives us life, to the feeling of a city that pulsates – to the bass in house music. Like fire, the pulse has brought people together since time immemorial. What paths do we end up on when we follow it?

SKÅNES DANSTEATER

ON and On and On and....

Maria Naidu (SE)

In a time marked by unrest, polarization and distance, ON and ON and ON ON and ON moves in the opposite direction. Rooted in one of our oldest social rituals – dancing together – the work becomes a powerful reminder of the need to gather, share and move.

Into Practice: What comes next in our antiracist work?

Sophia Wekesa (FI)

This workshop invites us to look at how antiracism can move from theory into practice. We will explore 15 characteristics of white supremacy and how they show up in dance and dance communities, reflect on our own learned behaviours, and consider our individual roles within collective antiracist work. In recent years, we have laid important groundwork through studying and reflecting on antiracist theory. This workshop will ask what do we do now?
