Duus & Møller Launches a New Stool Designed by Sami Kallio

Scandinavian Simplicity and Timeless Craftsmanship in Perfect Balance

Duus & Møller introduces a new stool designed by renowned Finnish-Swedish designer Sami Kallio. Rooted in Scandinavian design traditions, the stool combines simplicity, functionality, and exceptional craftsmanship in a piece of furniture created to last for generations. The design is characterized by clean lines, balanced proportions, and an honest approach to materials, where every detail has been refined to its essential purpose. The result is a stool with a calm and timeless expression that fits naturally into both private homes and public spaces.

Sami Kallio's design philosophy is founded on a deep respect for materials and craftsmanship, a principle that is clearly reflected in the new stool. The piece combines traditional woodworking techniques with modern precision, creating a harmonious balance between form and function.

“The ambition was to create a stool that expresses simplicity without compromising on character or quality. Every element has been carefully considered to achieve a design that feels both natural and enduring,” says Sami Kallio.

Designed with versatility in mind, the stool can serve as a seat, a side table, or a standalone design object that brings warmth and authenticity to a space. Its light and elegant appearance reflects the Scandinavian approach to furniture design, where beauty emerges through simplicity and thoughtful detailing.

With the launch of this new stool, Duus & Møller continues its commitment to collaborating with leading designers to create furniture that bridges contemporary lifestyles and timeless values. The result is a piece that does not follow trends, but is designed to become a lasting part of everyday life.
