høstbo presents
contemporary Danish design during 3 Days of Design

During 3 Days of Design, June 10–12, høstbo presents an exhibition at Postbyen featuring works by Anne Boysen, Amalie Hornemann, Anna Søgaard, Elly Feldstein, Frederik Gustav, Mia Lagerman, and Alberte Svendsen.

For Marie-Louise Høstbo, the exhibition marks a step toward building høstbo as more than a gallery. It is a platform for exhibitions, salons, and dialogue, a place where design is not only displayed, but experienced.

The exhibition brings significant contemporary Danish design into a spatial dialogue. Objects are not shown as isolated works, but curated in relation to one another, as well as to daylight, material, and movement.

The raw space in Postbyen becomes part of the presentation. As daylight shifts across surfaces, the works are experienced not only as design objects, but as elements that shape an atmosphere.

The exhibition reflects høstbo's ambition to connect design history with contemporary practice. It asks how material intelligence, craft, and spatial understanding can remain relevant today, and how Danish design can contribute to an international conversation about the future of how we live.
