BRUUN RASMUSSEN PRESENTS COLLECTOR'S EDIT DURING 3DAYSOFDESIGN 2026

An exhibition celebrating the enduring value of art, design and the personal act of collecting

Copenhagen, June 2026 – During 3daysofdesign, the Danish auction house Bruun Rasmussen Arts Auctioneers presents Collector's Edit, an exhibition that explores the personal art of collecting and how historical design continue to shape the spaces we live in today.

Presented at Galerie Mikael Andersen in the heart of Copenhagen's art and design district, the exhibition brings together a carefully curated selection of artworks, furniture and design objects, each chosen for its craftsmanship, aesthetic quality, and provenance. The pieces carry a unique story of artistry, materiality, and cultural relevance, reflecting the journey they have taken through time. Together, the pieces illustrate how style is continually reinterpreted across generations and how historical objects can find new meaning in contemporary homes.

At a time when homes are increasingly becoming reflections of personal expressions, Collector's Edit explores collecting as an act shaped by curiosity, emotion and individual taste.

"Collecting is about more than ownership. It is about creating meaningful connections between the past and the present, and surrounding ourselves with objects that reflect who we are and how we choose to live," says Anders Askman, design specialist, Bruun Rasmussen Arts Auctioneers.

Through the exhibition, Bruun Rasmussen highlights the lasting appeal of exceptional objects and the role they continue to play in shaping personal spaces and life narratives. The selection features works by both renowned and lesser-known designers and artists, united by enduring aesthetics and exceptional craftsmanship.

All works presented in the exhibition will be offered at auction, ready to become part of a new story.
