Item 4 Advisory Business

Capita Financial Network, LLC ("Capita") was formed in January 2018. The principal owner of Capita Holdings, LLC is MBL Financial LLC, which is owned by Michael and Britney Littledike. Capita provides financial planning and discretionary investment advisory services for retirees and those planning for future retirement. Capita reviews the individual needs of each client as part of the financial planning process and uses the financial plan to tailor its advisory services to the needs of the client. Clients may impose individual restrictions on their accounts. Our investment advisory services include selecting model portfolios and providing other asset management services as detailed below.

Model Portfolios

Capita reviews the client's financial plan and assists the client in setting an appropriate investment objective. Capita has discretion to select a risk-based model portfolio sub-advised by a third-party investment adviser (the "Subadvisor"). The Subadvisor is responsible for selecting investments consisting mainly of individual securities, exchange-traded products and mutual funds within a model portfolio and for making changes to the investments selected. The Subadvisor may use other third-party advisors to select investments within the model portfolios. Capita monitors the model portfolios on an ongoing basis and has the ability to make changes to the allocation among the available models. Capita primarily recommends TownSquare Capital, LLC ("TownSquare"), a third-party investment adviser, as a sub-advisor.

Asset Management Services

Capita will provide discretionary investment advisory services for separately managed accounts invested in various types of investments, such as mutual funds, exchange traded products, equities, options, fixed income securities and private funds. Capita's advice is tailored to the individual needs of the client based on the client's investment objectives. Accounts are reviewed on a regular basis and rebalanced as necessary according to each client's investment profile.

Private Funds

Capita can allocate assets among private funds, including funds of funds, managed by third parties. With respect to fund of funds, Capita recommends funds on an alternative investment platform which manages feeder funds that invest in private offerings managed by third parties.

All relevant information, terms and conditions relative to private funds, including the investment objectives and strategies, minimum investments, liquidity terms, qualification requirements, suitability, fund expenses, risk factors, and potential conflicts of interest, are set forth in the offering documents (which typically include a confidential private offering memorandum, Limited Partnership Agreement, and Subscription Agreement), which each investor is required to receive and/or execute prior to being accepted as an investor in a fund. Capita does not invest clients in private funds without prior approval from the client, and the client must complete the subscription documents.

Capita manages $2,323,963,878 on a discretionary basis as of December 31st, 2024.

Item 5 Fees and Compensation

Capita charges fees based on a percentage of assets under management, payable quarterly in advance as specified in the client's investment advisory agreement. Fees generally range from 1% to 1.75% annually, but Capita may negotiate fees at its discretion. Fees are charged by account and clients with multiple accounts may be charged different fee rates for each account as agreed upon in the investment management agreement. Clients may pay different fees for accounts with the same or similar objectives at the adviser's discretion. Capita generally directly debits client fees. However, clients have the option to be billed.

If an advisory agreement is terminated, and/or if a client takes a distribution over $5 before the end of the quarter, Capita will provide the client with a pro-rated refund of any pre-paid advisory fee. If a client terminates mid-quarter, prepaid fees will typically be refunded the month following termination. For example, if a client terminated in April, the client will likely be refunded any prepaid fee in May. If a client deposits additional funds into an account during the quarter, fees will be charged on pro-rata basis, factoring in the number of days left in the quarter.

Certain supervised persons of Capita serve as insurance agents. As part of a financial plan, Capita may recommend the purchase of fixed annuity products and life insurance. Capita may conduct insurance business under the name "Capita Insurance Agency" in order to comply with some states' regulations and standards. Capita receives commissions on the sale of these insurance products. No client is under any obligation to purchase a commission product from Capita. Clients may purchase insurance products recommended by Capita through other non-affiliated insurance agents. The sale of commission products creates a conflict of interest because Capita has a financial incentive to recommend these products based on the compensation to be received, rather than on a client's needs. In addition to disclosing this conflict of interest to clients, all supervised persons of Capita must abide by a Code of Ethics which requires them to make recommendations only in the best interest of their clients.

Clients may also incur charges for brokerage commissions and transaction fees for effecting certain securities transactions (e.g., transaction fees are charged for certain no-load mutual funds, commissions are charged for some individual equity and debt securities transactions) custodian fees, account maintenance fees, fees related to mutual funds and exchange traded funds, and variable annuities, and other product-level fees. While Capita generally recommends no-load or institutional share classes for mutual fund investments, Capita may recommend that a client continue to hold previously purchased mutual fund shares which may incur additional fees, such as distribution and redemption fees.

Client assets that are invested in private funds, including funds of funds, are subject to management fees, performance fees, platform fees and other expenses charged by such funds as set forth in the offering documents. Such charges and fees are exclusive of, and in addition to, Capita's fees. Please see Item 12 for additional information regarding Capita's brokerage practices.

Item 6 Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Capita does not charge performance-based fees or participate in side-by-side management of accounts.

Item 7 Types of Clients

Capita provides investment advisory services to individuals (including trusts, estates, and IRAs of individuals and their family members), high net worth individuals, 401K plans and small businesses.

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

At the beginning of each client relationship, Capita creates a financial plan tailored to the client's investment objectives and cash flow needs. Capita provides investment advice based on the client's goals and risk tolerance. Capita recommends model portfolios, other asset management services, or private funds to meet the client's individual needs. Capita conducts investment analysis which may include reviewing comparisons to applicable benchmarks, standard deviation, beta, active share return, upside and downside capture, and portfolio range. With respect to private funds, Capita conducts appropriate due diligence, which can include reviewing the offering documents, underlying fund managers, fund financials, historical performance and investment guidelines, among other things.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Different types of investments involve varying degrees of risk, and it should not be assumed that future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable or equal any specific performance level(s). Moreover, some investments may result in the loss of some or all of the capital invested. Past performance is not indicative of future results.

The firm's methods of analysis and investment strategies do not represent any significant or unusual risks; however, all strategies have inherent risks and performance limitations.

General Risk

- Market Risk - the risk that the value of securities may go up or down, sometimes rapidly or unpredictably, due to factors affecting securities markets generally or particular industries or segments.
- Interest Rate Risk - the risk that fixed income securities will decline in value because of an increase in interest rates; a bond or a fixed income fund with a longer duration will be more sensitive to changes in interest rates than a bond or fixed income fund with a shorter duration.
- Credit Risk - the risk that an investor could lose money if the issuer or guarantor of a fixed income security is unable or unwilling to meet its financial obligations.
- Business Risk - the measure of risk associated with a particular security. It is also known as unsystematic risk and refers to the risk associated with a specific issuer of a security.
- Cybersecurity Risk- although Capita has taken measures to reduce the risks associated with a cybersecurity event, the computer systems, networks and devices used by Capita and its service providers potentially can be breached. A client could be negatively impacted as a result of a cybersecurity breach. A cybersecurity breach could result in failure to maintain the security, confidentiality or privacy of sensitive data, including personal information of clients. A cybersecurity breach may also cause disruptions and impact business operations resulting in a financial loss to a client.

Investment Specific Risk

- Mutual Funds- A mutual fund is an investment vehicle made up of a pool of moneys collected from many investors for the purpose of investing in securities such as stocks, bonds, money market instruments and other assets. Each type has different features and different risks and potential rewards. Generally, the higher the potential return, the higher the risk of loss. Clients should read a fund's prospectus and shareholder reports to learn about its investment strategy and the potential risks prior to investing

- Exchange Traded Funds ("ETFs")- An ETF is a marketable security that tracks an index, a commodity, bonds, or a basket of assets like an index fund. Investing in ETFs carries the risk of capital loss (sometimes up to a 100% loss in the case of a stock involved in bankruptcy). Areas of concern include the lack of transparency in products and increasing complexity, conflicts of interest and the possibility of inadequate regulatory compliance.
- Equities- Equity investments generally refer to buying shares of stock in return for receiving a future payment of dividends and/or capital gains if the value of the stock increases. The value of equity securities may fluctuate in response to specific situations for each company, industry conditions and the general economic environment.
- Fixed Income -Fixed income investments generally pay a return on a fixed schedule, though the amount of the payments can vary. This type of investment can include corporate and government debt securities, leveraged loans, high yield, and investment grade debt and structured products, such as mortgage and other asset-backed securities, although individual bonds may be the best-known type of fixed income security. In general, the fixed income market is volatile and fixed income securities carry interest rate risk. (As interest rates rise, bond prices usually fall, and vice versa. This effect is usually more pronounced for longer-term securities, as noted above.) Fixed income securities also carry inflation risk, liquidity risk, call risk, and credit and default risks for both issuers and counterparties.
- Private Funds- Private fund investments tend to lack liquidity and are subject to varying degrees of risk. Certain private funds may be unable to raise funds to meet its stated liquidity terms or may be unable to sell investments quickly or at a fair value. The success of private funds may depend upon the availability of the underlying funds or entities to develop and implement investment strategies that achieve the fund's investment objective. Decisions made by these underlying funds or entities may cause the limited partnership to incur losses, which in turn may cause the fund to limit an investor's ability to withdraw funds. There is no active market for private funds and investors may not be able to sell or otherwise transfer or dispose of fund interests. Further information involving the risks associated with private funds can be found in the offering memorandum of the fund.

There is no assurance that the above is a complete description of all risks of an investment or that there are no other risks that may exist now or that may arise in the future in connection with an investment.

Item 9 Disciplinary Information

Capita and its management persons do not have any disciplinary information to disclose.

Item 10 Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

As described in Item 5, Capita is licensed to sell certain types of insurance, and certain supervised persons of Capita serve as insurance agents. As part of a financial plan, Capita may recommend the purchase of fixed annuity products and life insurance. Capita receives commissions on the sale of these products. This creates a conflict of interest because Capita has a financial incentive to recommend the purchase of these products. No client is under any obligation to purchase a commission product from Capita. Clients may purchase insurance products recommended by Capita through other non-affiliated insurance agents. Further, all supervised persons of Capita must abide by Capita's Code of Ethics which requires them to make recommendations only in the best interest of their clients.

Neither Capita nor any of its related persons are registered or has a registration pending to register as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, a commodity trading advisor, or an associated person of the foregoing entities.

Capita does not receive any compensation from the third-party managers it recommends. A portion of the investment management fee paid by clients is retained by Capita and a portion is paid to the third-party manager. The fees for models or strategies offered by third-party managers may differ. This creates a conflict of interest because Capita has an incentive to recommend models and strategies with lower fees. Capita has policies and procedures in place to ensure that models and strategies selected for clients are in the best interest of the client given their investment objective. Capita also provides a fee-for-service business, related to assisting clients or other third parties through situations such as divorce financial planning. Capita has a vested interest in directing business to the firm. Any recommendations to pursue financial planning, asset management, or to purchase insurance products will require no obligation on the part of the client/third party to complete those recommendations through Capita.

Item 11 Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading Capita enforces a Code of Ethics (the "Code") to promote the highest levels of ethical conduct among its supervised persons. The Code includes the following general principles: 1) the duty at all times to place the interests of clients first, 2) the requirement to conduct personal securities transactions in such a manner as to avoid any actual or potential conflict of interest, and 3) the fundamental standard that Capita and its supervised persons exercise independent, unbiased judgment in the investment decision-making process.

Consistent with the foregoing general principles, the Code provides standards of business conduct whereby all supervised persons must: 1) act in the best interests of clients at all times; 2) report their personal securities transactions and holdings periodically for review by the Chief Compliance Officer; 3) comply with applicable federal and state securities laws; 4) report any violations of the Code promptly to the Chief Compliance Officer; and 5) provide Capita with a written acknowledgment of their receipt of the Code and any amendments.

The Code also stipulates that supervised persons are not permitted to use their knowledge of proposed or actual recommendations or transactions to profit personally. The Code also restricts the personal receipt of investment opportunities, perquisites, or gifts from persons doing or seeking business with Capita that could call into question the supervised person's independent judgment.

Supervised persons are also prohibited from sharing non-public personal information of clients without permission except as permitted by law and regulation, and unless necessary to complete a transaction on the client's behalf.

Supervised persons of Capita may invest in the same securities it recommends to clients. Supervised persons may also buy or sell securities for their own accounts at or about the same time that they buy or sell the same securities for client accounts. This presents a potential conflict of interest because trading by a supervised person in a personal securities account in the same security on or about the same time as trading by a client could potentially disadvantage the client. Capita addresses this conflict of interest by requiring that supervised persons report certain personal securities transactions and holdings to the Chief Compliance Officer for review. Supervised persons are allowed to participate in aggregated transactions with client accounts and receive the same average price and commissions as clients.

This summary is qualified in its entirety by Capita's Code of Ethics. Clients and prospective clients may contact Capita at (801) 566-5058 to request a copy of the Code of Ethics.

Item 12 Brokerage Practices

All client transactions are executed through the client's custodian, including those executed by the Subadvisor. Capita primarily recommends the brokerage and custodial services of broker dealers such as Charles Schwab and Fidelity Investments (the "Custodians"). Capita does not receive any soft dollar benefits; however, it may receive research reports from the Custodians. These research reports are provided to Capita based on the overall relationship between Capita and the Custodians, and are not the result of soft dollar or other arrangements involving the execution of client transactions.

The principal factors that Capita considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers and in determining the reasonableness of their compensation include industry reputation, financial stability, research services, operating history, fee and commission structures, and client service. In selecting or recommending broker-dealers, Capita does not consider whether it receives client referrals from a broker-dealer or third party.

Capita routinely requires that client accounts be held at the Custodians and executes all transactions through the client's custodian. Not all advisers require their clients to direct brokerage to their custodian. By directing brokerage, Capita may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of client transactions, and this practice may cost clients more money.

Where appropriate, Capita may combine client transactions if it decides to purchase or sell the same securities for several clients at approximately the same time. Capita combines such orders to: 1) obtain "best execution", 2) negotiate more favorable commission rates, or 3) allocate differences in prices and commissions or other transaction costs equitably across client accounts. Employee transactions may be combined with client orders.

The Subadvisor is responsible for execution of trades in the model portfolios which represents the majority to assets managed by Capita. The Subadvisor executes all transactions through the client's custodian and may also combine client transactions. If Capita or the Subadvisor does not combine transactions when it has the opportunity to do so, clients could pay higher brokerage costs.

Item 13 Review of Accounts

Capita reviews client financial plans at least annually to determine if there have been changes to the client's risk tolerance, cash flow needs, and income taxes, among other things. Based on this review of the client's financial plan, Capita then reviews the client's account to determine if changes to the investment recommendations are needed. In the event that a client is unresponsive to Capita's requests for review of financial plan, Capita will make attempts in order to review on a best efforts basis.

With respect to model portfolios, the Subadvisor is responsible for reviewing the investments and executing transactions within the account. Capita has the ability to change the allocation between investment models.

Account reviews are conducted by Capita's investment adviser representatives. Additional information about Capita's investment adviser representatives is available in brochure supplements to this brochure and on the SEC's Investment Adviser Public Disclosure website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov. Clients and prospective clients are encouraged to review this additional information.

Capita will also review a client's account if there is a client event which changes their financial situation, such as retirement. Clients are urged to contact Capita if there is a change in their financial situation. Capita may also conduct an additional review of client accounts if there is a large market fluctuation.

Capita does not provide regular reports to clients. Clients receive periodic reports directly from their custodians, and clients may log in directly to the Custodians website for up-to-date account information, statements, confirmations, and tax reports. In addition to the Custodian's website, Capita provides a client portal to view current asset allocations, account holdings, performance reports, and account balances.

Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Capita may refer clients to other specialized professionals (e.g. accountants, attorneys, etc.). Capita does not receive monetary compensation for these referrals. However, these professionals may refer clients to Capita, either for no compensation or through an agreement as described below.

Capita has entered into various agreements regarding client referrals. Under those agreements, we have agreed to compensate the referral sources in cash either based on number and volume or through a flat fee arrangement. Such compensation is reviewed on a periodic basis.

Capita may also receive client referrals from third-party insurance agents. If these clients purchase insurance products through a supervised person of Capita, Capita may share a portion of the commission with the third-party insurance agent.

Item 15 Custody

Capita has constructive custody of client accounts solely as a result of its ability to directly debit investment advisory fees and standing letters of authorization for payments to third parties. All client accounts are maintained at qualified custodians. Clients will receive a statement at least quarterly from their custodian and are urged to carefully review those statements.

Item 16 Investment Discretion

Capita accepts discretionary authority to manage accounts on behalf of clients. This authority is granted in the client's written investment advisory agreement.

Item 17 Voting Client Securities & Class Action Suits

Capita has policies and procedures to ensure that client securities are voted in the best interest of the client and to address conflicts of interest. When authorized to vote client securities, it is Capita's policy to vote in accordance with management recommendations. Capita engages an independent third-party shareholder service firm to handle the administrative functions associated with the voting of proxies. Clients cannot direct Capita on how to vote regarding particular issues.

Capita seeks to ensure that its proxy voting decisions are in the best interest of its clients and are not the product of a conflict of interest. A conflict could occur due to business or personal relationships that Capita maintains with persons having an interest in the outcome of the votes. To mitigate any potential conflicts of interest, Capita votes in accordance with management recommendations.

Clients who authorize Capita to vote proxies are automatically enrolled in a program with a third-party service provider who files claims for class action lawsuits involving client holdings. The fee for this service is a contingency fee of 20% of the total reimbursement of asset settlements collected for the client in consideration of the class action services. If a client wishes to opt out of this service, please contact Capita in writing to give notice to opt out.

If a client does not authorize Capita to vote securities, clients receive their proxies directly from the custodian or, in the case of mutual fund shares, the fund's transfer agent. Clients may contact Capita directly with any questions about a particular solicitation.

To obtain information regarding Capita's proxy voting policies and procedures and how Capita voted a proxy, contact us at info@capitamail.com.

Item 18 Financial Information

Capita does not require or solicit prepayment of more than $1,200 in fees per client, six months or more in advance.

There are no financial conditions that are reasonably likely to impair the firm's ability to meet contractual commitments to clients. At no time has Capita been the subject of a bankruptcy petition.

CHARTERED RETIREMENT PLANNING COUNSELORSM (CRPC®)

The CRPC® Program focuses on the pre- and post-retirement needs of individuals, allowing you to transform the retirement planning process into a positive experience. Enrollment in the program allows you to study a variety of principles in the retirement planning field. The program guides you through the retirement process from start to finish, addressing issues such as estate planning and asset management.

The College for Financial Planning® awards the Chartered Retirement Planning Counselors and CRPC® designation to students who:

- Successfully complete the program;
- Pass the final examination; and
- Comply with the Code of Ethics, which includes agreeing to abide by the Standards of Professional Conduct and Terms and Conditions. Applicants must also disclose of any criminal, civil, self-regulatory organization, or governmental agency inquiry, investigation, or proceeding relating to their professional or business conduct. Conferment of the designation is contingent upon the College for Financial Planning's review of matters either self-disclosed or which are discovered by the College that are required to be disclosed.

Students must sign and return the Code of Ethics forms within six months of passing the final exam. Failure to complete and submit the forms within this time frame may result in termination of the individual's candidacy. If an individual wishes to apply for authorization to use the Marks in the future, he or she may be required to fulfill the initial designation requirements in place at the time of passing the exam. Successful students receive a certificate and are granted the right to use the designation on correspondence and business cards for a two-year period.

Continued use of the CRPC® designation is subject to ongoing renewal requirements. Every two years individuals must renew their right to continue using the CRPC® designation by:

- Completing 16 hours of continuing education;

Certifications:

CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ (CFP®)

The CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™, CFP® and federally registered CFP® (with flame design) marks (collectively, the "CFP® marks") are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. ("CFP Board"). The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education - Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination - Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience - Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics - Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals. Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education - Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
- Ethics - Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

Certifications:

CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ (CFP®)

The CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™, CFP® and federally registered CFP® (with flame design) marks (collectively, the "CFP® marks") are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. ("CFP Board"). The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education - Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination - Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience - Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics - Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals. Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education - Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
- Ethics - Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

- Utah Valley University, Bachelor of Science in Business Management, 2022

Business Background:

- Capita Financial Network, LLC, Wealth Advisor, 8/2024 - Present
- Fidelity Investments, Investment Consultant, 4/2020 - 7/2024
- Northwestern Mutual, Financial Representative, 5/2019 - 1/2020

Certifications:

CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ (CFP®)

The CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™, CFP® and federally registered CFP® (with flame design) marks (collectively, the "CFP® marks") are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. ("CFP Board"). The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education - Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination - Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience - Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics - Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals. Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education - Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
- Ethics - Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education - Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination - Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience - Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and

- Ethics - Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals. Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:
 - Continuing Education - Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
 - Ethics - Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

Certified Divorce Financial Analyst® (CDFA®)

The Certified Divorce Financial Analyst® (CDFA®) designation is issued by The Institute for Divorce Financial Analysts (IDFATM), which is a national organization dedicated to the certification, education, and promotion of the use of financial professionals in the divorce arena.

Founded in 1993, IDFATM provides specialized training in accounting, financial, and legal professionals in the field of pre-divorce financial planning. Over the years, IDFATM has certified more than 5,000 professionals in the U.S. and Canada as Certified Divorce Financial Analysts® (CDFAs®). The CDFA® designation is available to individuals who have a minimum of three years' experience as a financial professional, accountant, or matrimonial lawyer. To acquire the designation, a candidate must successfully pass all exams and be in good standing with their broker dealer (if applicable) and the FINRA/SEC or other licensing or regulatory agency.

To earn the designation, the participant must complete a series of self-study course modules and pass an examination for each module. The American module topics are:

- Financial and legal issues of divorce
- Advanced financial issues of divorce
- Tax issues of divorce
- Working as a CDFA: case studies

To retain the Certified Divorce Financial Analyst® designation, a CDFA® must obtain fifteen divorce-related hours of Continuing Education (CE) every two years, remain in good standing with the IDFATM, and keep his/her dues current.

CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination - Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience - Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics - Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals. Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education - Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
- Ethics - Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.
