

You don't always know which rashes are infectious.

Source for Images:
CDC Public Health
Image Library (PHIL)

Because you can't always tell what causes a rash, you should always take the following actions to protect patients and yourself from the spread of germs.

Treat broken or irritated skin with care; it's a vulnerable place where germs can enter a patient's body.

Use gloves if you have to touch the rash, to prevent germs from spreading.

Clean and disinfect things that the patient has touched.

Learn More

Germ Live on the Skin Infographic: <https://bit.ly/3OEGTty>

Gloves and Gowns Session Plan: <https://bit.ly/44bGkNz>

Environmental Cleaning and Disinfection Session Plan: <https://bit.ly/3KBBTVF>