

Agile leaders must role model the change they want to see

Constructive feedback is a core pillar of any agile organization

Agile leaders unlock the leadership potential in everyone they work with

Agile organizations require honest, open working environments where all team members trust and respect each other

As an agile leader, you must be available to your team, but also empower them to make their own decisions

