Action on equality, diversity and inclusion

Organisations taking part in The RACE Report are asked to detail the action taken internally to support equality, diversity and inclusion. The list of actions covers a breadth of areas and incorporates commonly recommended actions to support progression of equality, diversity and inclusion, but is not intended to be an exhaustive list. Neither is one action intended to be prioritised over another, and actions may not be applicable to all organisations.

Approach to equality, diversity and inclusion

We do not accept discriminatory behaviour on the basis of age, disability, ethnicity, gender identity or reassignment, marriage or partnership status, pregnancy or maternity, religion or belief, sex, sexuality, or any other form. This is essential and we have a clear, supportive process for reporting and dealing with this kind of discrimination. This reflects the legal requirements for an organisation based in the UK and focuses primarily on ways that discrimination causes disadvantages for protected groups. However, we need to go further, to reflect and work on how we relate to each other and communicate, because relationality and frameworks of care are central to what we do in the CPA. An empathetic relational approach means respecting each other's anger and hurt, and at times calling on each other to consider our assumptions or opening difficult conversations together in what Professor Loretta J. Ross terms a 'call-in culture'. This means we need space to consider the less visible, embedded assumptions that affect our relationships, behaviour and communication, and that can cause hurt to others, even if unintentionally. These are the power structures embodied by institutions that underpin societies, with differences across and within countries, cultures, and generations. We need to support each other as we go through our different processes of confronting and challenging our assumptions.
