'St Florian who intercedes,
for firefighters most in need.
Who hears the prayers that no one hears,
except the ones that know our fears.

Protect the men and women,
who at risk of limb and life renew.
The pledge we made when we began,
to selflessly serve our fellow man.

Regardless of the dreadful blaze,
the blinding smoke or daunting haze.
Nor flood, nor fall, nor dreaded blight,
that steals upon the land by night.

Nor enemies who would do us harm,
I pledge my heart, my hands, my arms.
To boldly rescue from despair,
whomever I encounter there.

Regardless colour, creed or skin,
I will answer all who call me in.
And when my time has come at last,
may the fire bells toll as I go past.

May my axe be sharp and boots be clean,
may my helmet be hung without a stain.
And may the ones who have known me best,
commend my soul to a Fireman's rest.'
