Developing MEL systems that balance learning and accountability

In-Person | Bangkok | 9 - 12 June, 2026

Why our course

Capturing the quantitative and qualitative results of your programme has become common good. Our course highlights practical design approaches to an effective MEL system that goes beyond tracking activities. Learn how to show results that trigger interest, accountability, learning and bankability. Our course ensures your MEL system enables genuine learning by all through showcasing the latest M&E methods and tools, to capture both your achievements in numbers and remain impact-oriented.

Who this training is for

You are a project or programme manager, an M&E officer or advisor. You are responsible for project or programme design, implementation and/or for improving M&E practices in your or other organizations. You have at least one year experience in project planning, management and/or M&E or some practical experience in working with M&E tools and methodologies.

Certificate

Participants will receive a certificate of completion by the end of the course if you have finalized all the online assignments and have attended the face-to-face programme.

By the end of this course, you will:

- Understand the latest approaches to MEL and how to apply these in your organization or project.
- Know how to turn M&E into a participatory and systematic learning practice.
- Design and use key performance indicators and progress makers.
- Understand latest qualitative evaluation methodologies and how to apply these.
- Improve your M&E processes to ensure learning at the organizational level.
