
Lucinda Coyle

Playwright

A confident, collaborative Playwright with 6 years experience of writing and creating boundary breaking, bold new plays, that have been produced in London. Lucinda Coyle is a queer female writer & producer.

Having trained as an Actor Musician at Mountview Academy of Theatre Arts, her passion lies in creating collaborative, bold, and unapologetic pieces of theatre.

Coyle has many strings to her bow (literally & figuratively) working also as a Dramaturg, Musical Supervisor & Associate Artist including new Musical "Cliffs".

Coyle is also the co-founder of "Pitch Point" a UK wide writing initiative, allowing 10 new productions/creatives the opportunity to showcase & pitch 10-15 minutes of their new musical/play directly in front of a panel of leading industry professionals including but not limited to Producers, Programmers & Artistic Directors.

'Pitch Point' has been supported strongly across its two years with Panellists from companies including Soho Theatre, Liverpool's Royal Court, The Other Palace, Mark Goucher Productions, Pleasance, Kings Head Theatre, and many more. More information can be found at www.bulletpointtheatre.co.uk
