

L. Wayne Camp Award

Criteria

The original criteria for the L. Wayne Camp award was set during a meeting in November 1997 at the Arkansas REALTORS® offices in Little Rock. The discussions named the award and set it up to have the award presented annually during the Arkansas REALTORS® convention. It is to be presented to one person who, in the opinion of the judges, has made outstanding, long-term, and continuing contributions to the Arkansas REALTORS® Association's volunteerism and fundraising for Special Olympics Arkansas. Judging is patterned after the REALTOR® of the Year award, in that future recipients would compose the judging panel. The first year, in the absence of recipients, selection was made by the Arkansas REALTORS® Association Public Relations Committee. The second year, the selection panel consisted of the recipient, the chairperson of the Arkansas REALTORS® Association Public Relations Committee, and the Arkansas REALTORS® Association president. The third year, the selection panel consisted of the two previous recipients and the chairperson of the Arkansas REALTORS® Association Public Relations Committee. The fourth year, the three previous recipients composed the panel. In ensuing years, all the recipients composed the panel.

The primary criteria are as follows:

1. Involved in the Special Olympics fundraising efforts on behalf of the Arkansas REALTORS® Association
2. Involved with Special Olympics outside of the Arkansas REALTORS® Association (i.e. coaching, volunteering, etc.)
3. Long-term involvement (unlike the REALTOR® of the Year award which recognizes current year activity)
4. Member in good standing of the Arkansas REALTORS® Association

It is awarded under the precept that the honor seeks the recipient.

Selection is made during a meeting of previous recipients, generally via a conference call. All previous recipients are notified of the meeting or call. A previous recipient may, with valid excuse, be excused from the meeting or call. The recipient is selected by a majority vote.

Applications MUST be emailed by August 15 of the current year
