

What to do if someone is overdosing

A quick guide to spotting an overdose and acting fast, no medical background needed. Shared by Ophelia for International Overdose Awareness Day.

RECOGNIZE IT

Signs of an overdose

Slow or no breathing

Blue or gray
lips or fingertips

Unresponsiveness to touch or shouting

Choking or gurgling sounds

Limp body

RESPOND

What to do

1

Call 911. Say you think it's an overdose

2

Give naloxone if you have it. It's safe to use even if you're not sure

3

Roll them onto their side to prevent choking

4

Stay with them
until help arrives

5

If they're not breathing, start rescue breaths or CPR if trained

GOOD TO KNOW

Naloxone is available over the counter at most pharmacies. No prescription is needed, and it's free through many state programs.

Good Samaritan laws in most states protect you from legal trouble for calling 911 during an overdose.