

NOMOQ
The can do company

We are NOMOQ, a young high-tech company supplying craft beverage companies with digitally printed beverage cans. Our international team consists of ambitious and experienced experts and entrepreneurs. We offer unprecedented customer orientation and enable beverage manufacturers to create unique designs with unprecedented speed and flexibility based on the latest technology and digital processes. Our name comes from "NO Minimum Order Quantities" and is our promise to deliver premium packaging in small and medium quantities. We don't rest until the beverage cans we decorate look as perfect as our customers' beverages taste. This is our promise and our passion.

Quality Assurance Officer (f/m/d)

Full-time on-site, Leamington Spa

In this role, you will be responsible for the quality of our printed cans throughout the production process. You will carry out a range of quality checks and tests to ensure that every can we produce is up to our standards and ready to be delivered to our customers' production lines. Your work directly impacts customer satisfaction and the reliability of our products, making you a key part of our team.

Your tasks:

- You perform adhesion, bonding, and porosity tests and document results accurately
- You conduct incoming goods inspections to verify delivery accuracy
- You perform basic machine maintenance (spindle repairs and insert replacements) and provide relief coverage as machine operator when needed
- You ensure processes and products comply with relevant norms through regular quality checks
- You lead claim investigations, answer customer questionnaires, and drive issue resolution

- You support the QMS implementation, documentation, and provide 1st level support for QMS-related questions in coordination with HQ Management

What you should bring:

- You have previous experience in a QA, production, or manufacturing environment
- You have experience with complaint handling and are able to identify and analyse root causes
- You have familiarity with quality management systems and relevant norms/standards
- You are highly competent in standard software packages and have good IT skills
- You have the ability to consistently identify nonconformities and liaise with relevant departments to drive improvement

Who you are:

- You have excellent communication skills both written and verbal
- You have excellent attention to detail, administration, organisation, and ownership skills
- You have strong analytical and problem-solving skills
- You have strong interpersonal skills and ability to develop/maintain relationships at all levels within the company and external clients
- You have the ability and commitment to delivering an excellent service with a positive "can do" attitude

What we offer:

- Competitive salary and 33 days holiday allowance
- Autonomous work with cutting-edge technologies, allowing you to choose the tools best suited for your work
- Friendly, international and highly experienced team
- Room to learn and grow
- You will be part of a growth story: we are a pioneer in the beverage packaging market and will seize this opportunity to become the leading European player

A growing company in a booming market with many exciting challenges awaits you. With our work, we want to offer our customers added value and also make a contribution to sustainable growth.
