

BIBLIOTHEQUE WINE LIST

I remembered reading Truman Capote's masterpiece, In Cold Blood, as a teenager; my first real memory of the True-Crime genre. I recently pulled out my copy over a glass of wine—a bottle of syrah I had opened the night before. I dug back into the classic novel and simultaneously worked my way to the bottom of the bottle. Unexpectedly, the rugged and rustic texture of the wine lead me down the “unpaved” dirt and gravel roads of the isolated farmlands of Kansas. The “true account of a multiple murder and its consequences” immediately lifted the sanguine and meaty notes of the syrah, while the warmth from each sip felt like protection against the lurking, ominous threats. Impressively, none of this was showing in the wine the night before! There was a synergy that all great pairings have—the wine elevated the narrative and the novel allowed for a more pleasurable drinking experience. Conceptually, the Bibliotheque wine list was born...

As a bookstore/wine bar collaboration, the main throughline of the list is to find the intersection between the literary world and the wine world. Most wine professionals love a good pairing; we pair with food, with seasons, with experiences. Most recently, we have seen efforts to pair wine with various humanities--wine with music, wine with art...so why not pair great wines with great books? While navigating a wine list can be intimidating, at Bibliotheque we try to make searching for a wine as fun as searching for your next great read. The list is organized into two sections. You will find in the second half the “Full Story”; our entire wine list categorized regionally, as a majority of today's wine lists are organized. In the first half you will find special “book chapters”. These chapters are grouped by classic bookstore genre (Classics, Romance, Best Sellers, Adventure, etc). Each category is whimsically filled with wines selected to “pair” with said genre...sometimes in a literal sense and other times figuratively. Perhaps you want to pair a soft, seductive wine with your new romance novel. Conversely, maybe you are sitting in our lounge after a hard day with a glass of bubbles and you decide it is time to read the latest self-help book. Either way, Bibliotheque has you covered. Happy wine hunting!

CHAPTER 2: Stanzas

Hark how the gay lyricist enlivens the feast,
The bowl circles briskly from west to east;
Now up, now down, to each votary haste,
Be this night for mirth, and the next for rest. - Horace

Do you want a bottle, but without the full commitment...enter THE HALF BOTTLE.
Equal to two glasses of wine, these may be the perfect verse for your bottled poetry experience.

CHAPTER 5: Mystery

“Not since lunch.” – Harry Waugh

When asked whether he ever confused a Bordeaux with a Burgundy in a blind tasting.

Why blind taste?

Blind tasting is often thought of as a fanciful parlor trick. There are mythical stories of wine connoisseurs, who are able to correctly identify the variety, vintage, soil type, surrounding body of water, etc just by putting their nose in a glass. So why should YOU blind taste? Blind tasting is a tool used in helping develop a wine lexicon, eliminate bias, enhance sensory skills, improve your palate, and most importantly...it's really fun.

CHAPTER 9: Classics

“No thing more excellent nor more valuable than wine was ever granted mankind by God.” – Plato

What makes a classic wine producer? Time, of course. Time confirms that a producers beauty in winemaking is not just the fashion of a moment, but something deeper and more enduring. These benchmark names are etched in our minds as a measure of which all others are considered.

CHAPTER 11: Art History

“Wine is the only artwork you can drink.” – Luis Fernando Olaverri

The wine bottle as a canvas for artistic expression was first introduced by Mouton Rothschild in 1945, resulting in collaborations with the likes of Hockney, Warhol, Dalí and Picasso. Many producers followed in their artistic footsteps with labels that have become calling cards and collectors’ items, while also evoking emotions and telling stories. A perfect prelude to pleasurable tasting.

CHAPTER 12: Antiquity

“Orange wine is not ‘an assault on pleasure,’ it’s a window into our changing tastes” – Esther Mobley

No, orange wine is not wine made from oranges. Also known as skin-contact wine or amber wine, orange wine is a white wine made like red wine by fermenting white grapes with their skins. It is a distinctive dry and tannic style with links to the contemporary natural wine movement, but with a history that dates back 6,000 years, it is truly inspired by antiquity. Hailing from areas of Eastern Europe now known as Georgia, it was also found for several centuries in northeastern Italy and Slovenia, but only in the past 20 years or so has it reappeared in consequential volume.

First embraced only by sommeliers and wine nerds, orange wine is now finding more love among the casual wine drinkers.

CHAPTER 13: Gardening

“Wine is sunlight, held together by water.” – Galileo Galilei

Do you have the “Greenie Meanies” and enjoy the “herbaceous” or “vegetal” side of wine. Often leaning more savory rather than fruit-forward, classic examples like Sauvignon Blanc, Grüner Veltliner, Cabernet Franc, or Cabernet Sauvignon offer a range of notes from mint to asparagus to bell pepper to eucalyptus. Dig in and explore the garden of the wine world!

CHAPTER 14: Travel

In truth, all wine is an echo of its landscape, of the vines planted there, and the sound that they make in the form of their fruits.” – Doug Frost

Just as Napa Cabernet Sauvignon made believers in American wine and Malbec put Argentina on the international wine map, many other grapes have found success outside their native lands. You may be familiar with Nebbiolo from Italy or Syrah from France, but how do these wines show when grown outside of their indigenous regions? Like all travel, every place has a unique experience awaiting you.

CHAPTER 15: Criticism

“The 100-point system is flawed, of course, but it’s also emerged as perhaps the most effective tool to have spoken to a lot of consumers in the past three decades.” – Jon Bonne

Taste Perfection? Although a polarizing scale, hundreds of thousands of wines are submitted for critical consideration each year.

Few wines achieve the extraordinary distinction as 100-point wines.

All the wines below received a perfect 100 point score from at least one of the major wine reviewers and publications.

CHAPTER 17: Erotica

“Somehow the wine world seems to insist we ignore an otherwise routine animal tendency and effect to despise sweetness...if you’re one of those perverse people who is certain you hate sweetness, then please come on a picnic with me, so I can eat all the pink ripe strawberries and you can eat all the fucked up little green ones at the bottom of the basket” – Terry Theise

Although many don’t admit it, people love sweet wine...now we’re not talking about the cloying, diabetic-coma-inducing juice, but slightly sweet and acid to match, which might just curl your toes. Can sweet wine be better than sex? You be the judge.

CHAPTER 19: Agriculture

As one of the oldest beverages known to man, an ancient thirst for beer may have inspired agriculture. Stanford researchers have found the oldest archaeological evidence of beer brewing, a discovery that supports the hypothesis that in some regions, beer may have been an underlying motivation to cultivate cereal grain.

The Wines of Domaine de La Romanée-Conti

A document published during the French Revolution remarked on the wines of Romanée-Conti “the most excellent of all those of the Côte d’Or...Its brilliant and velvety color, its ardor and scent, charm all the senses....Well kept, it always improves as it approaches its eighth or tenth year; it is then a balm for the elderly, the feeble and the disabled, and will restore life to the dying.”
