

You choose the scope. You choose the timeline.

Access top student talent with 50% subsidized funding.

Why Riipen FuturePath?

Riipen FuturePath is a government-subsidized work assistance program that connects businesses with top student talent through flexible, real-world projects. Gain access to skilled, motivated individuals who bring fresh insights, digital fluency, and innovative thinking, while helping you move work forward and support the next generation of the workforce.

It is smart talent support and strategic capacity-building — co-funded by the Government of Canada.

How it works?

Employers collaborate with students on 10–300 hour projects. You define the task and the timeline.

Projects are subsidized and low-risk, helping you offload real work and assess potential hires.

Real employers. Real results.

"The student quickly understood the project and brought fresh ideas that helped move it forward after it had stalled. Their addition of animation and avatars will be a key revenue stream for us. They were so terrific we hired them!"

— Nicole Piggott, President,
Synclusiv Inc.

"The student was fantastic to work with. They were collaborative, responsive, and independent. After our rebrand, they saved me at least 60 hours by rebuilding our short-form video database."

— Conor Phillips, CEO,
Roamlit

The Riipen FuturePath advantage:

Extra capacity without the overhead.

Flexible, skilled support to offload real work, no job posting, no onboarding, no long-term commitment required.

Co-funded student support.

50% of student work time is subsidized by the Government of Canada, reducing the cost per project.

Your tasks, your scope.

You set the hours and define the deliverables, from marketing and research to admin or analytics. Projects start at just 10 hours and scale up to 300 hours.

Got a student you want to work with?

No problem, FuturePath also facilitates personalized matches between employer and students.

Fast impact, real results.

Launch in days, not weeks. Students hit the ground running and help you make progress on work that might otherwise be deprioritized.

Think beyond subsidies. Think long-term.

Your competitors are already tapping into flexible, subsidized student support — are you?

With Riipen FuturePath, you do more than offload tasks. You build your future talent pipeline, make faster progress, and hire smarter.
