WINEMAKING & VINEYARD

Organic w/biodynamic principles. Sourced from Schodl’s plot in the town of Blumenthal. Loess mixed with iron-rich sandstone soils. This makes the earth kind of red and so this Riesling is called “red soil” (rote erde in German). Grapes are harvested in mid-Oct. After destemming the berries have skin contact for a few hours to extract flavor from the skins. After gentle pressing, the juice went through fermentation in stainless steel tank with natural yeast at a temperature with 18°C. Aged on the fine lees until bottled in mid-Feb.
