Portfolio Commentary

- In the fourth quarter, the portfolio generated a return of +1.28% through a period of reduced visibility from the government shutdown and growing divisions among policymakers over the future path for rates.
- The fund outperformed the Bloomberg US Aggregate Bond Index, which returned +1.10% for the period.
- Profits were generated from short-term government bonds, agency mortgages, emerging market debt, bank loans, and corporate credit as US GDP growth exceeded consensus expectations and consumer price pressures decreased, adding support for asset prices despite shifts beneath the surface of markets.
- Upside was limited by losses from convertible bonds and the long-end of the curve for both nominal and inflation-linked US Treasury exposures as long-term concerns around government borrowing increased.
- With the new year bringing midterm elections, a leadership change at the Fed, and less forgiving conditions for AI-driven growth, the fund is positioned for related uncertainty with a strategic balance to potential economic outcomes while seeking to actively monetize dislocations in the cycle's next phase.

PRINCIPAL RISKS:

The use of derivatives, forward and futures contracts, and commodities exposes the Fund to additional risks including increased volatility, lack of liquidity, and possible losses greater than the Fund's initial investment as well as increased transaction costs. Concentration generally will lead to greater price volatility.

This Fund enters into a short sale by selling a security it has borrowed. If the market price of a security increases after the Fund borrows the security, the Fund will suffer a potentially unlimited loss when it replaces the borrowed security at the higher price. Short sales also involve transaction and other costs that will reduce potential Fund gains and increase potential Fund losses. Diversification does not eliminate risk. Diversification cannot ensure a profit or protect against loss in a declining market. It is a strategy used to help mitigate risk. An investor considering the Fund should be able to tolerate potentially wide price fluctuations. The Fund is subject to high portfolio turnover risk as a result of frequent trading, and thus, will incur a higher level of brokerage fees and commissions, and cause a higher level of tax liability to shareholders in the Fund. The Fund may attempt to increase its income or total return through the use of securities lending, and they may be subject to the possibility of additional loss as a result of this investment technique.

This Fund is a non-diversified fund. Because the fund may invest in securities of smaller numbers of issuers, the Fund may be more exposed to the risks associated with and developments affecting an individual issuer than a fund that invests more widely, which may, therefore, have a greater impact on the Fund's performance.

This Fund is not suitable for all investors.

Investors should carefully consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of the Fund before investing.
