Vindurin blæsur, hvar sum hann vil

Vit í Føroyum eru ikki bláoygd, hvat viðvíkur náttúrunar megi. Vit eru eyðmjúk og vita, at vit kunnu ikki temja náttúruna og vindin. Men vit kunnu gagnnýta vindin. Eitt lítið lot hjálpir firvaldinum á flog, og undanvindurin veitir heiðafuglinum hvíld á veg heim. Men veksur hann vindin, kann hann koppa bilar, skip og hús – ella sum her í Flatnahaga – veita orku til eina heila tjóð.

Wherever the wind blows

We in the Faroe Islands are aware of the power of nature. We are humble and know we cannot tame nature and the wind. But we can harness it. A gentle breeze helps the butterfly take flight, and a tailwind provides rest for birds on their journey to these islands. But when the wind here grows strong, it can topple cars, ships, and houses – or, as shown here in Flatnahagi, provide energy to an entire nation.
